Succession Bill on Floor Friday, Harris Promises

House supporters of the gubernatorial succession amendment have the pledge of Speaker Roy Harris that the measure will be brought to the floor by Friday.

They won this pledge from the speaker after Rep. Ben Fortson, of Wilkes, and Rep. Walter Harrison, of Jenkins, launched a move to pull the amendment from Rep. J. W. Culpepper's committee on constitutional amendments and put it in the amendments committee headed by Rep. Claude Pittman, of Bartow.

Harris overruled the efforts, and during the discussion on rules regarding withdrawal and transfer of bills in committee, said he had promised that Culpepper's committee would meet today. He added that the bill will be ready for house action by Friday.

Harrison then stopped the efforts to change committees, saying he had confidence that Harris would keep his word.

Chm. Culpepper announced on the floor that his committee would meet this afternoon.

The house state of the republic committee has indorsed the important state merit system bill, overwhelmingly passed by the senate, but Speaker Harris, who is chairman of the rules committee, said the merit system proposal might not be called up for debate until after the house completes action on the gubernatorial succession amendment.

He said he wanted the house to clear the calendar of minor bills today and tomorrow.

The state of republic committee also has recommended passage of a bill to permit cities and counties to levy taxes for recreational facilities.

The house passed bills to speed up court procedure in Georgia, ratifying rules made by the supreme court. After these measures were adopted, Charles J. Bloch, of Macon, president of the State Judicial Council, which prepared the legislation, praised the body for approving these judicial reforms.

He said the moves were the culmination of many months' work on the part of attorneys over Georgia and that they made "great strides in judicial reform in Georgia."

The house asked congress to have the Civilian Production Administration (former War Production Board) to lift the restriction on rosin.

"This limitation on the use of rosin has caused huge quantities of rosin to back up in the hands of producers in the producing areas," the resolution said. Georgia is the largest producing state of gum turpentine and gum rosin.

Good News, Georgia, Warmer Weather Seen

All of Georgia is expected to find relief from rain and chilling temperatures today. Fair skies are featured on the weatherman's forecast for today, along with a promise of a rising mercury this afternoon, tomorrow and Friday.

The temperature will probably fall to 24 degrees, during early morning hours today, according to the report from the Atlanta weather bureau, but the mercury will begin a slow climb later, reaching a high of 45 degrees by midafternoon.

GI Brides To Sail

TIDEWORTH, England, Jan. 22. (AP)—More than 600 GI brides and their American children took temporary possession Tuesday night of historic Perham Down barracks, while waiting to sail Saturday for the United States on the S. S. Argentina.

Local Press Ownership To Be Issue--Harris

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

House Speaker Roy V. Harris says radio stations and newspapers in this state "must be Georgia-owned and Georgia-controlled or else Georgia is going to be in a bad fix."

This, he told the house in an address yesterday, "is going to be a paramount issue."

He asked:

"Are we going to permit people who do not think as we do . . . who are interested in dividends . . . to print yellow journalism?

"The time is coming when the people of Georgia will rise up on their haunches and say 'We will run our own affairs.'"

Harris' speech was in answer to a front page editorial in The Atlanta Journal which said he was "a shrewd parliamentarian" whose attitude toward a pending bill proposing to allow Gov. Arnall to seek re-election "seems to be dictated by his own personal ambition and his own aspiration for the governorship."

The measure would submit in a referendum the question of altering the constitution to allow a governor to succeed himself.

The time is coming, Harris said, "when we will not permit absentee ownership to dominate this state" no more than "we would allow a man in Ohio to tell the teachers of this state what they should teach."

The Atlanta Journal, a strong supporter of the "Draft Arnall" movement, is owned by ex-Gov. James M. Cox, of Ohio, who also publishes newspapers in Florida and Ohio.

Harris said th libel laws should also be changed to permit suits where newspapers employed innuendos.

Harris lauded the Journal and its editor, Wright Bryan. He then denied that he had ever blocked consideration by the house of any important measure and said that Arnall was "perfectly satisfied" after Harris had explained plans to bring up the resolution later this week.

"I think they (the Journal) have been most unfair . . . in asking the house to override this speaker," Harris said.

"I have not put the pressure on any man . . . and yet the Atlanta

Revised Home Rule Bill on Way

By LORRAINE NELSON.

A revised version of Sen. Pres. Frank Gross' home rule bill, which he introduced in the upper house last week, was approved by Sen. W. B. Freeman's state of the republic committee at a meeting last night.

Pres. Gross said he hoped the bill would reach the floor of the senate for final action by tomorrow. Since it has had only one of the required three daily readings, it cannot be acted on before that day.

Senators expressed the belief last night that the home rule bill, considered among top-ranking legislation to come before the general assembly during this session, would be passed by the upper house when it does reach the floor for action.

Others doubted that it will pass the house, even if it does get by the senate.

As revised by President Gross and explained by him, the home rule bill would allow counties and cities to decide in an election whether or not they want to adopt home rule and would allow them to choose their own form of government (that is, whether a county shall have one commissioner or a board of commissioners, and whether a city shall have a mayor and council or mayor and commission, etc.). This election, if not called within a limited period of time by authorities, would be required upon petition of 5 per cent of the voters in the area concerned.

The legislation would allow counties and cities to fix salaries and to enact zoning and planning ordinances, Gross said. It would require, furthermore, that all local governmental changes be sanctioned by the people in an election, he explained.

Sen. G. Everett Millican, chairman of the rules committee, said the senate today would take up the house measure to appropriate $10,000,000 for expansion of state services, which has been approved by the appropriations committee.

Also on today's calendar are house bills to authorize counties and cities to enact zoning and planning ordinances, and to raise qualification standards for county school superintendents.

The senate committee on appropriations voted to recommend passage of house bills to appropriate $500,000 for construction of armories for the Georgia National

Maestri Trails In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Incumbent Robert S. Maestri was trailing in a nip and tuck race with De Lesseps Morrison in Tuesday's New Orleans mayoralty primary.

Unofficial returns from 240 of 262 precincts gave Morrison 60,119; Maestri 56,866; and Shirley G. Wimberley 1,706. Tabulators, swamped by the deluge of votes from the voting machines, made no immediate attempt to tabulate the returns for four other candidates who received only scattered votes.

Morrison, 34, who came out of the Army to challenge the long-entrenched old regular Democratic organization, forged to the front after trailing in the early tabulations.

Seek 50 Pct. Pay Hike for Teachers

The House Appropriations Committee today will ask that Georgia school teachers be given a 50 per cent raise in pay.

It unanimously voted to make such a recommendation, on motion of Mrs. Helen Mankin, Fulton representative, yesterday, following a lengthy hearing attended by approximately 500 persons.

The committee did not indicate where the necessary $10,000,000 would be obtained. Chm. Charles Gowen, of Glynn, said the house ways and means committee would be the committee to decide where to obtain the funds.

Representatives of the P-TA, Lions Club, Rotary Clubs, University Women, Georgia Education Association, state department of education, board of regents, county school superintendents and state agricultural and industrial board either spoke for the proposal or sent telegrams and letters favoring it.

No one expressed opposition to the measure.

The bill, sponsored by 40 members of the house, would increase the state's appropriation to education from $24,000,000 to $34,000,000. Rep. Harvey Roughton, an author of the bill, thanked the house for raising the appropriation from $7,000,000 in 1936 to $21,500,000 this year, and for recently adding another $2,500,000.

The speakers declared Georgia's schools are in critical condition for lack of teachers, housing and transportation. They said teachers are quitting their jobs in droves to take better paying positions, and that many schools are closed for want of instructors.

"There are still schools in Georgia with padlocks on their doors," said Mrs. J. C. Owen, of Griffin, representing the P.-T. A. "The question is what will we do about them?"

Gorman Garrison, of Ochlochnee, representing 169 Lions clubs, declared that juvenile delinquency will increase 10-fold if the state allows its schools to break down. He said 5,000 Lions have petitioned the legislature to do whatever is necessary to pay teachers on a basis with other state employes.

Rural children are suffering the most by this teacher shortage, according to H. L. Wingate, of the Georgia Farm Bureau. He said a general tax program is needed to do the job.

"The turnover in teachers is so fast in our schools that the children cannot learn the name of their instructors," Assistant State School Supt. J. I. Allman said.

Allman denied charges that local communities are lowering their tax assessments and levies as the state increases its aid. He said 126 counties have increased their digests since 1939. And, since the new constitution was adopted, 33

Fulton Solons Debate Action on Manager Bill

Fulton's three representatives were trying to reach a decision on whether to hold a public hearing on the county merger bill, after the Fulton grand jury demanded a house vote and the Atlanta Federation of Trades asked for a hearing.

Reps. Helen Mankin and Cicero Kendrick were doubtful that a hearing is necessary, while Rep. Paul Etheridge thought a hearing might be necessary in view of the labor group's request.

The grand jury yesterday backed up the editorial request of The Atlanta Constitution that the house vote on the county manager bill.

"Be it resolved," said the grand jury in a resolution issued yesterday, "that the house of representatives of the Georgia general assembly now in session be requested by this body, and they are hereby requested, to take prompt and favorable action on a bill now pending before said body authorizing the appointment of a county manager in and for said Fulton county."

The Constitution pointed out editorially Tuesday that the bill has been marked "Hold for public hearing," but that no hearing has been set and indications are that opponents of the measure are merely using this as a ruse to prevent passage of this reform.

Chairman Freeman, of Upson county and of the County Matters Committee of the house, was quoted as saying that Fulton County Representatives Mankin, Etheridge and Kendrick had asked that the bill be held up for a public hearing, but that no public hearing had been scheduled.

The grand jury resolution was signed by J. R. Cathy, foreman, and J. D. Stone, secretary.

Henry W. Chandler, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, wrote Chairman F. H. Sills, of the house county matters committee, saying many of his group "do not believe the county manager plan is in keeping with our democratic concepts, and that it should not be invoked without according every interested citizen an opportunity to be heard."

The county matters committee did not meet yesterday.

Gilliam Proposal To Put City Police Under Civil Service Stirs Department

By HERMAN HANCOCK

A new outbreak of factionalism has occurred among the 380 members of the Atlanta police department over a proposal to blanket departmental members under general civil service administered by the city personnel board.

Several weeks ago, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, member of city council's police committee, presented to city council a proposal to induct the police department under civil service. The matter was bandied about considerably and finally wound up with an order from the police committee to hold a secret election on the issue where every man would vote his preference.

Police Chief Hornsby will set the date for the election after a conference with Alderman Gilliam, and it probably will be held early next week.

Gilliam yesterday prepared to visit the various watches to explain the issue to the officers and men. The Gilliam decision followed reports that some of the officers were "making a bugaboo out of civil service beclouding the issues, to the detriment of the best advantages of the members of the department and improved services to the public."

One report reaching Gilliam was that a high officer had told policemen any superior officer could dismiss them from service under the new program. Gilliam explained that only the department head can prefer charges against an employe under general civil service, and pointed out that Mayor Hartsfield has objected to extension of civil service to the police department for the reason that he himself as mayor could not prefer charges against an offending officer.

Hornsby had tentatively set tomorrow as the date for the voting, but at a telephoned request from Gilliam said he would await a conference with the alderman before deciding when the balloting will take place.

They are slated to confer over details of the voting within the next few hours and a date will be set at that time.

The police department now functions on what is known as police nure laws with policemen being tried for offenses by a five-man city council committee. Any citizen, however, can bring charges against an officer. Under the new plan, all charges would be filed by the chief and would be tried by the three-man city personnel board.

Proponents of civil service contend that existing pensions, insurance, sick leave and other existing advantages would be maintained under civil service, but that employments and promotions would be divorced from politics. The clerks and other civilian employes of the police department are already under general civil service and only policemen proper would be affected. The personnel department now establishes eligible lists for selection of patrolmen.

Opponents recite that the policemen are accustomed to administration of personnel problems of the department by city council's police committee. They view any change with apprehension.

Gilliam says he sees no reason to doubt that civil service which has demonstrated its advantages in departments where it has been operative should not benefit the police department.

"I think it would help the policemen, it would help the officers, it would help raise the standard of efficiency, it would insure promotions on a merit basis and it would help the people who pay the bills by providing a more efficient department," Gilliam said.

Lt. C. D. Hardeman, secretary to the police committee, said a roster of the police department will be kept by election managers, each member will be allowed one vote, and that a guard over the box will prevent "repeats."

"Every man will get one vote on which system he prefers the existing one or civil service," Hardeman said. No provision had been made to take fingerprints of the voters, election managers agreeing they know all those eligible to vote.

ARMY LETS GO OF CLOTHES, TEXTILES, SHOES, TO BE SOLD AT EARLY DATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Army announced Tuesday it has declared surplus $9,212,588 worth of clothing, including 921,376 pairs of shoes and several million yards of textiles.

Sales programs are being prepared by the War Assets Corporation, and the items will be offered to priority claimants and dealers in the near future.

The material includes 5,178,333 yards of cotton cloth, 767,962 yards of cotton duck, 291,390 yards of alpaca and wool pile, and 40,240 yards of nylon chute cloth.

Also in the list are 30,984 WAC skirts, $2,148,461 of photographic equipment, 1,729,779 rolls of waterproof wrapping paper, 7,839,880 pounds of gun powder, 565 horses and 335 mules.

U. S. Ready To Seize Meat Plants Today

By DELOS SMITH.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(UP)—The federal government Tuesday night aggressively sought relaxation of the no-quarter battle between sections of industrial management and organized labor threatening economic disruption on a national scale.

As the total of strikes and strike idle reached an all time high of 1,800,000, President Truman prepared to seize strikebound meat packing plants Wednesday and Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach persuaded the warring parties of the electric industry to accept government-sponsored mediation.

But both moves appeared temporary expedients and an industry authority asserted that the total of strike-idle would exceed 2,000,000 within a week and pyramid steadily thereafter unless there is a settlement of the key fight—that between the steel industry and the 750,000 striking members of the United Steel Workers (CIO).

The White House prepared the seizure order under the President's unexpired war powers. It was not issued at once because there was no assurance that either the management of the major packers or their almost 300,000 striking employes would function for the government.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—(UP)—T. L. Green, general manager of the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad, said he had been notified Tuesday night by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen that the union would strike at 10 a. m. Wednesday, disrupting virtually all east-west rail freight movements through Chicago.

Mr. Truman's advisers were ascertaining the terms of both sides for the temporary arrangement pending further mediation of the workers' wage demands—temporarily increased wages for the strikers; increased ceiling prices on meat for the management.

CENSURES PACKERS

But authoritative sources in Washington said the President would order the plants seized Wednesday, in any case, barring a development that might lead to a settlement of the wage dispute by management and labor. These sources said he was ready to sign the order as soon as all legal phases were cleared.

An indication of the strikers' attitude came from Lewis J. Clark, president of the Packinghouse Workers (CIO), one of the two striking unions, who said in Chicago: "We feel it totally unjust to seize the strikebound packing industry as long as no definite agreement has been reached with the packers and in view of their continued refusal to bargain on wages."

The Labor Department announced, however, that the other union, the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workman (AFL) had agreed to return its members to their jobs if the government seized the plants. The final decision of the CIO union awaited a conference between its negotiators in Washington and its executive board. The negotiators were en route to Chicago for the conference.

CRISIS IN 10 DAYS

The government, however, was struggling with the immediate crisis. There was a national meat shortage. It was approaching famine proportions in some sections. The pressing need was to get the plants functioning. Its efforts to end the basic steel strike shutting off the supply of ingots

Russell Scores FEPC As Filibuster Goes On

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Sen. Russell, Democrat, Georgia, told the senate Tuesday that Adolf Hitler, if alive, could get an American paper-hanger's job under the FEPC bill, subject of a senate filibuster.

Russell delivered an extended personal analysis of the measure, and about the nicest thing he called it in answer to a question by Sen. Hickenlooper, Republican, Iowa, was "this monstrosity."

"If Adolf Hitler could come over here," he declared, "he could hail an employer up before this FEPC kangaroo court and get a job as a paperhanger and keep some American soldier from getting the job."

Taking the floor immediately after a quorum was assembled at 12:15 p. m., Russell stretched still further the filibuster which other southern Democrats began against the measure Friday.

A Democratic official with lengthy experience in the senate declared no break is in sight this week. While the filibuster is on, the senate can transact no other business.

Russell said it is a misnomer to call the measure "the Fair Employment Practice Bill," or, as it formally is labeled on the first page, "A bill to prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, creed, color, national origin or ancestry."

Instead, the Georgian suggested this caption for the bill:

"A bill to regulate and control the tastes, customs, habits and manners of life of the American people; to establish an independent agency to dominate the executive branch of government and to influence all policies of the government, whether foreign or domestic; to invite alien immigrants and assure them of employment to the detriment of the right of native-born Americans to work; to nationalize all employment in industry, business, agriculture and commerce, and to promote a communistic form of government for the United States."

The measure would set up a five-member commission to investigate and police business, labor unions and government against discriminatory practices. It orders could be appealed only to United States circuit courts.

Russell contended the bill is designed to "protect the Communists and enable them to get government jobs." Sen. Chavez, Democrat, New Mexico, one of the sponsors of the bill, protested that surely Russell did not believe that he (Chavez), a Catholic, was seeking to aid Communists.

Russell retorted that the bill in some form or another had been before congress long before the New Mexico senator's name was put on it.

"Every Communist and every Socialist in the country is supporting this bill," Russell said.

Outpost of Confederacy To Vote on Return to U. S.

TOWN LINE, N. Y., Jan. 22.—(UP)—This tiny western New York crossroads community Tuesday night bedecked itself Hollywood style to vote Thursday on whether to return to the Union.

It was 85 years ago that the forefathers of the village's present-day residents voted to throw their lot with Jefferson Davis' Confederacy in the thick of controversy over War Between the States issues.

Obscured during the ensuing years, the fact came to light last summer and in October residents voted to suspend their Confederate allegiance and delay until 1946 a vote on whether to become a member of the Union.

Last summer's meeting, which left the village "without a country and under the protection of Gov. Dewey, of New York," had originally scheduled the final ballot for July, 1946. But early this month Alvin E. Weber, chairman of a reconstruction committee in charge of the ballot, declared that returning World War II veterans were "raising an awful clamor to settle the issue immediately."

"They went away to fight for their country and returned to find they haven't any," Weber declared. "They don't like it."

The voting date was moved up to Thursday.

With the big event only two days away, Town Line was dressing up to meet the occasion. The sagging old blacksmith shop where the original secession papers were signed in 1861 was being decorated. A Confederate flag was obtained to wave over the ancient structure. And the crossroads center of town, renamed Truman Square in honor of the President, blossomed out in colorful banners and flags.

Hollywood moved in with the announcement that the premiere showing of the 20th Century-Fox production, "Col. Effingham's Raid," accenting national unity, would highlight the voting ceremony. Because the village does not have a theater, the picture will be shown in the local firehouse. A world premiere of the picture was slated for Atlanta, Ga., this week.

In addition, movie stars Cesar Romero and Martha Stewart will make personal appearances, and Charles Coburn, star of "Col. Effingham's Raid," will broadcast an appeal from Georgia for Town Line to rejoin its neighbors in "recognizing the Union."

A luncheon will precede the motion picture showing. Ballots will be cast during the afternoon. If the voting so warrants, an American flag will be substituted for the Confederate banner flying over the blacksmith shop.

'Blue Baby' on Way to Hope For New and Healthy Life

(Picture on Page 1.)

By ANN WOOD

Resplendent in a new red coat, red leggings and red velvet bonnet and clutching a white fur muff, Myrna Brock, three-year-old "blue baby," left yesterday for Baltimore and the "miracle" operation at Johns Hopkins hospital.

It was her first train ride and it was also the first time her mother, Mrs. Mildred Brock, had gone outside the state of Georgia.

PUBLIC RESPONDS

Their trip to Johns Hopkins and the operation has been made possible by the public's more-than-generous response to Mrs. Brock's appeal published in The Constitution. More than $1,200 poured in from persons who read the plight of the mother, unable to afford the operation needed to save her child's life.

Mrs. Brock and Myrna were accompanied by Mrs. Brock's father, L. F. Cook, whose job as elevator operator in the William Oliver building will be waiting for him when he returns.

"We'll be in Baltimore for over a month," Cook said yesterday at the Terminal, "and 'I intend to find something to do up there to make a little money."

The family boarded the train and Myrna, beginning to turn a little blue from the journey, settled down in the compartment and began to play with a toy tractor.

They were scheduled to reach Baltimore early this morning and Myrna will be admitted to Johns Hopkins today.

GRANDMOTHER'S THANKS

Left at home, Mrs. Cook, the child's grandmother, wrote a letter "to The Constitution and people of Atlanta."

"I have watched Myrna suffer for three years," the letter said in part, "and nobody could do anything for her. I can't say how grateful I am to the people who are helping her to become healthy and happy like other children. I can only pray that the operation will be a success."

Meanwhile contributions poured in from as far away as Jackson, Miss. S. B. Key sent $5 from the Capitol Street Church of Christ, in Jackson.

Two anonymous contributions of $1 each were received. Omitted from yesterday's list of American Legion Auxiliary units who made the operation possible were the Atlanta Unit No. 1 and the East Atlanta unit.

Bill Empowers Cities To Build Parking Sites

Atlanta and other Georgia municipalities will be empowered to establish off-street parking facilities to maintain property values by providing easy access to business houses in congested areas if the Georgia state senate gives its approval to a pending house bill.

Under the plan, cities may condemn properties needed for establishing parking lots or garages as recommended in the metropolitan traffic survey of W. H. Lochner & Co. and associates.

Harry Lochner recommended that steps be taken to authorize acquisition of needed sites by condemnation and that municipalities be empowered to operate the facilities or to co-operate with private operators to obtain strategically located properties.

Sen. Millican has been furnished a substitute bill for one offered by House Speaker Roy Harris which would broaden the powers granted municipalities. The house already has passed the Harris bill, but the substitute has been drawn and can be offered before final senate action.

If the bill is finally approved, Atlanta and other municipalities will be in position to provide adequate downtown parking space so that shoppers and others will be able to reach business and mercantile establishments in congested areas rather than being forced to park their cars on the outskirts and taking public transportation into the heart of business and shopping districts.

Traffic congestion has become an increasing problem in Atlanta, and merchants and others are concerned that parking difficulties may result in decentralization to the detriment of existing property values.

Adequate parking facilities also would clear streets of parked machines and speed up the flow of traffic, experts say.

LABOR

that is the lifeblood of 40 per cent of all industry, seemed in a state of suspension.

The crisis here was due in 10 days to three weeks.

Its first manifestations were appearing. The total of office workers idled only because the steel mills were closed reached 100,000. Over 6,000 coal miners—in Alabama and Pennsylvania—and 6,000 railroad workers were laid off, also as the direct result of the steel strike. And this was only the beginning.

In Akron, Ohio, the major rubber processors prepared to shut down on tire production, beginning in two weeks. Their stocks of bead wire for tire carcasses were low. With the steel mills closed, they cannot be prepared. The suspension, if it comes, will add several thousands more to the total of idle.

STEEL'S "BLANK WALL"

An industry authority said there were hundreds of small steel fabricators scattered across the country with stocks that couldn't be stretched over a week of full operation. Inevitably, they all will be compelled to close. In 10 days, the virtual stoppage of steel production will begin reaching the larger users, such as the automotive industry.

No indication of an early settlement was apparent on the embattled steel front. Phillip Murray, president of the CIO and of the United Steel Workers, met in Pittsburgh with the union's 21-man negotiating committee and planned strike strategy. In New York, Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel, the traditional bellwether of the industry, said the union was entirely responsible for the strike.

He had acted to protect the consumers of steel when he rejected President Truman's settlement formula, he said, and not in the "selfish interest of U. S. Steel." He added that he wanted "a settlement in the best interest of the American people." He would not comment on Murray's radio speech of Monday night in which Murray charged that "big business" was seeking to break unions and exact "unconditional surrender" from the government and the public. But, he said, that he would go on the radio Wednesday night to present industry's side.

WRITES TO VINSON

Murray appealed to government and congressional leaders Tuesday night for repeal of industry's reconversion tax benefits, charging refunds "siphoned from the U. S. treasury" would permit the steel industry to ignore labor's demands and remain closed during all of 1946.

He said the revenue act of 1942 would enable industry to collect $200,000,000 with which to break all strikes and wreck unions. He released the text of his letter to Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson urging revision of the portions of the tax act which "create special and unjust privileges for the large corporations." Copies were sent to congressional leaders of both parties.

INDEPENDENTS SIGN

In 30 states, 1,200 steel plants were closed for the second day and steel production was at its lowest in 53 years—4.9 of capacity. Strikers picketed the major plants, but management made no effort to reopen them.

Eighteen New England independent fabricators signed with the union on Mr. Truman's proposed wage, but in all they employed only 5,000. A Rochester, N. Y., firm, employing 500 men, also signed. These were added to the approximately 20 small firms in Pennsylvania and western New York and Henry J. Kaiser's California steel mills which had signed previously.

Schwellenbach's intervention in the electric dispute brought about acceptance of government mediators, but did not end or suspend the strike of 200,000 members of the United Electric, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) which have kept 78 plants of General Electric Co., Westinghouse Electric Corp., and General Motors, Electric Division, closed since Jan. 15.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS

He appointed William H. Davis, former chairman of the National War Labor Board, and Arthur S. Meyer, chairman of the New York State Mediation Board, as government mediators. Davis and Meyer immediately began conferences with Charles E. Wilson, president of GE; A. W. Robertson, chairman of Westinghouse, and Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the union.

The conferences will continue in New York Thursday.

All indications were that neither side had made any concessions—both had repeatedly stated their willingness to negotiate.

The union is willing to settle its 30 per cent wage increase demand at President Truman's figure for the steel industry—18.5 cents nore an hour. GE has offered 10 cents more on the hour for employes earning less than $1 an hour and a 10 per cent increase for those earning more. Westinghouse has made no specific increase offer in terms of cents per hour. General Motors, Electric, has offered an increase of 13.5 per cent.

The United Automobile workers, the fourth major CIO union battling for wage increases, ordered its 7,000 tool and die maker members to stop working on General Motors orders beginning Monday, in support of 175,000 GM production workers on strike for 63 days. The tool and die makers are employed in 160 shops in the Detroit area. They'll continue working on the orders of other automobile makers, but shove GM orders "under the bench."

LABOR BILL REPORTED

The threat of strike in yet another basic industry cropped up in New England, one of the two centers of textiles. Approximately 26,000 members of the United Textile Workers (CIO) were scheduled to strike in 68 New England mills on or about Feb. 1 unless the operators grant a wage increase of 15 cents an hour. Twenty-seven New England mills employing 37,000 had signed contracts with the union.

In Washington, President Truman's fact-finding proposal for the settlement of labor disputes received another setback when the House Labor Committee approved a bill that so emasculated it that supporters said it was "meaningless." It would merely authorize the President to appoint fact-finding boards—which he has already done, though lacking statutory authority. It contained neither provisions for the boards to have subpoena powers for company and union records nor for a 30-day "cooling off" period before strikes could be called. The bill now goes to the house floor, where it may come up for debate and vote next week.

Improvement Group Elects Jesse Draper

Jesse Draper, of the Draper-Owens Real Estate Co., has been elected president of the Central Atlanta Improvement Association, replacing James D. Robinson Jr.

Other officers elected at the meeting held yesterday in the directors' room of the Trust Company of Georgia, were, Maj. Clark McDonald, executive vice-president; Ward Wight, vice president; Frank Spratlin, vice president; John K. Ottley Jr., vice-president; and Clyde Williams, treasurer.

In his inaugural address, Draper expressed his willingness to support the Lochner plan and to help the organization in any way he was able.

"By putting our shoulders to the wheel we can accomplish our goal and I offer to this organization all the abilities I possess toward obtaining that object," he said.

Also present at the meeting was Mayor Hartsfield. He told the group of the problems the city faced as it grew to its present size and of the problems the city continued to face if it expected to attain the size of 750,000 or more.

"The city is going to give you all the help possible but the heart of your plan (the Lochner Plan) lies in the financial ability of the town," Hartsfield said. "The cost of running a town inexorably rises with the increase in size and the people out of the city must help us in this respect."

REREGISTER BILL

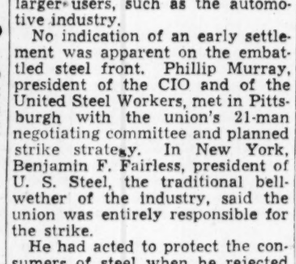

The senate yesterday passed a bill that would require every person in Georgia except residents of Fulton county to re-register four months before the next general election if they were not on the registration lists for the general election in 1944.

Atlanta's Sen. Millican won passage of an amendment to the bill exempting Fulton county from its provisions. He pointed out that Fulton county already has purged its registration lists through previously adopted legislation.

The measure was introduced by Sen. Spence Grayson, of Savannah, and passed by a vote of 29 to 3.

Another bill passed by the senators would reduce from $1 to 50 cents the fee which a clerk of a superior court may charge for making certified copies of veterans' records.

Gholston Urges Upon Solons Assembly-Chosen Road Board

The house and senate, in a joint session yesterday, heard J. Knox Gholston, member of the State Highway Commission, discuss a Highway Department reorganization plan which he is sponsoring.

Gholston, a farmer, merchant and banker of Comer, said he was not fighting any man but was "fighting the rotten system Georgia has had in her highway department for the last 20 years."

He said he would like to see Arnall elected governor again "if he would carry out the promises he made four years ago to straighten out the highway department."

GHOLSTON'S PLAN

His proposed reorganization calls for appointment of highway commissioners by the legislature, and distribution of state roads among the counties on the basis of population, total area and miles of roads.

Gholston's plan would earmark gasoline tax revenue for road and bridge work and apportion proportionately the road work among the counties.

"This would eliminate discrimination and vote buying and would not force Georgia people to beg for the roads they are entitled to have," he said.

Gholston said he was "not mad at anybody—I'm just working for the people of Georgia, the Talmadge folks, the Rivers folks and the Arnall folks."

LAWMAKERS APPLAUD

His listeners applauded when he said his bill would take the highway department out of the governor's hands and out of politics.

The highway commissioner stated that the Atlanta newspapers refused to print his reply to criticism of his plan made by House Speaker Roy V. Harris, at one of the presession conferences here. Harris is advocating a constitutional highway board and continuance of the present control by the state budget commission of highway money.

(The Constitution carried the Gholston reply to Speaker Harris' criticism on the morning of Jan. 9. The story was run on page 20. The Atlanta Journal said it carried the story on the afternoon of Jan. 9.)

counties have levied the maximum 15 mills tax for school purposes.

Allman predicted 150 counties would have reached this maximum had the constitution been passed a month earlier when school boards generally set their taxes for the new year. More state aid is needed, because rural counties couldn't get sufficient revenue if they levied the new maximum educational tax, he concluded.

FAST TURNOVERS

Five different teachers have taught in one English class during the past four months in Heard county, Supt. M. A. Rogers said in discussing fast turnovers in his staff. He said his faculty had a 40 per cent turnover since last year.

Supt. E. N. Thompson, of Coffee county, said Georgia lost a lot when one of his best teaching prospects quit a $75 monthly teaching job to take a $175 monthly job as a bookkeeper. He reported losing 22 teachers since the beginning of this term.

Many superintendents said they were keeping school doors open by using unqualified teachers, persons who did not have high school educations themselves but who were patriotic enough to work for $40 a month to try to teach children.

State School Supt. M. D. Collins said the recommended increase would make it possible for a Georgia school teacher with four years of college training and six years of teaching experience to be placed on a salary somewhat comparable to a railroad section hand who may not be able even to read or write. He said Georgia cannot take care of her children without taking care of her teachers, because their interests go together.

MESSRS. DISTRICT ATTORNEY—Three of the gentlemen above at one time or another have answered to the same title. Carl C. Donaugh, seated, left, who has just completed his third consecutive term as United States attorney of Portland, Ore., explains his aims as newly inaugurated president of Optimist International to a colleague, former United States Attorney Lawrence Camp. Interested on-lookers are (standing, left to right), Charles A. Shaw, president of the Optimist Club of Atlanta, and U. S. District Attorney Neil Andrews, also of Atlanta.

Community Itself at Fault If Youth Errs, Optimist Says

When a rash of juvenile delinquency breaks out in a city—that's a pretty good sign that the community, not its youth, is going to the dogs.

That's the considered opinion of Carl C. Donaugh, who for 12 years has watched a pathetic parade of youthful criminals just outside the doors of his office as United States attorney of Portland, Ore.

In his recently-assumed post as president of Optimist International the law-enforcement official hopes to steer boys and girls under 21 past offices like his own, "out of back alleys and penal institution corridors, and into the sunlight of good citizenship pursuits.

Donaugh, in Atlanta yesterday on one lap of an Optimist Club tour which will take him into Puerto Rico and Canada, uses all the force and persuasiveness gained in more than 30 years practice as a prosecuting attorney to "indict" communities for criminal carelessness which he believes is responsible for the alarming recent rise in juvenile delinquency all over the country.

"Service organizations face the greatest opportunity in history for community service—and of our peacetime problems, our youth and our returning veterans demand immediate attention," he believes.

The Oregonian cites figures obtained from the Department of Justice which disclose a 10.5 per cent increase in juvenile crime last year. During 1945 more than 110,000 boys and girls under 21 were arrested and fingerprinted for commission of felonies throughout the United States.

Even more pathetic is an age break-down showing that 47,000 youthful lawbreakers were between the ages of 17 and 18; more than 14,000 were 16; some 4,000 were 15, and an additional 4,000 were under 15!

Service groups like the Optimist Club of Atlanta are aiding schools, homes, and various agencies as advisors to delinquent youth and as sponsors of projects for citizenship training and delinquency prevention, the national official points out. Last year Optimist International, the primary aim of which is "Youth Service," contacted more than 150,000 boys and sponsored some 50 different activities for youth.

Atlanta's club and Pres. Charles A. Shaw were lauded by the international president for youth work carried on through the Junior Optimist Boys' Club and Camp Optimist at Lake Rabun, where 800 less-privileged youths enjoy annual summer outings.

Nazi Plunder Of France Told Trial Group

NUERNBERG, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Nazi plunder directly and indirectly caused the deaths of hundreds of thousands of French people and seriously damaged the health of the nation for generations to come, the French war crimes prosecution told the international military tribunal Tuesday.

Prosecutor Charles Gerthoffer, glaring at the Nazi defendants, charged that starvation diet and privations during the occupation were the immediate causes of 150,000 French deaths, and contributed to the deaths of countless thousands of others.

"Incurable maladies such as tuberculosis developed and will continue to expand their ravages for a long time to come," Gerthoffer said. "The growth of infants and adolescents is seriously compromised; the future of the race gives rise to great concern."

The Nazis rigged Franco-German "trade" as a one-way street to drain millions of francs' worth of goods and services into the Reich, the prosecutor said. They seized 80 per cent of the nation's livestock feed, 60 per cent of its eggs, 56 per cent of its champagne and left France on a slow-starvation diet, Gerthoffer charged.

Topping Made Commander

Lt. Cmdr. John D. Topping, USNR, assistant district public information officer for the Sixth Naval District in the Atlanta area, has been promoted to the rank of commander.

John D. Topping

Commissioned as a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve in December, 1942, Cmdr. Topping has been on duty in Atlanta since April, 1943, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander in October.

During his service here, Cmdr. Topping has been in charge of the district public information branch office. He and his staff have received special mention from high-ranking Naval officers for work in publicizing Navy procurement of personnel and covering activities of Naval commands in the Atlanta and Georgia area.

A former Asheville, N. C., newspaperman, Cmdr. Topping was on duty at Fort Schuyler, N. Y., and Charleston, S. C., before coming to Atlanta.

English Officer To Speak Here

Col. Robert Hoggard, Salvation Army officer of London, England, arrived in Atlanta yesterday to be guest speaker at a three-day interstate officers' conference being conducted at the territorial headquarters in Atlanta.

In an interview, Col. Hoggard said the purpose of his visit is to help prepare the minds and hearts of leaders in the south for the challenge of the postwar world.

"We believe," said the colonel, "there will be a greater need among people than ever before for spiritual guidance in the days to follow. We realize that after the strain of the most horrible of wars, many problems will arise among the veterans. There is no bureau set up by military government to combat these problems and fears—only human sympathy, understanding and spiritual guidance can help these men.

Citing the extensiveness of the Salvation Army, Col. Hoggard pointed out the army was the last of social and religious organizations in Germany to be made inactive by Hitler. At the close of the war, it was discovered that many of the army's buildings in Germany had been demolished, but approximately 200 former members are attempting to re-establish themselves with the parent organization.

He is addressing more than 325 army leaders through Thursday on the subject, "Challenge of the Postwar World." His principle address will be given at 7 p. m. today in the Ansley hotel, commemorating the 80th anniversary of the organization.

Plans for the 1946 evangelistic campaign will also be mapped by Lt. Col. Mildred Smith, of New York, an able Bible exponent; Maj. Lyell Rader, nephew of the prominent Dr. Paul Rader, and Maj. William Powell, recently discharged as district chaplain in Germany.

Other group leaders are: Col. Edmund C. Hoffman, of Atlanta, chief secretary, and Lt. Col. George Marshall, of Atlanta, field secretary.

Commissioner William C. Arnold, territorial commander, is presiding over all sessions and Preston S. Arkwright, president of the board, will preside at the dinner.

Georgia Power Construction to Cost Millions

The 1946 construction program of the Georgia Power Company calls for the expenditure of more than $10,500,000, according to W. E. Mitchell, president. Of this amount, the company will spend more than $3,000,000 in converting its street car lines in Atlanta to trackless trolleys.

Concerning improvements in Atlanta, Mitchell said:

"In the Atlanta area, the expansion is to include about 20 miles of new transmission lines, 113 miles of distribution lines, construction of 14 new substations and capacity increase of 13 others. An important project already under way is the construction of an underground cable line between the Boulevard and Grady substations. This will complete a service loop around the city that will improve distribution of electric power to all sections."

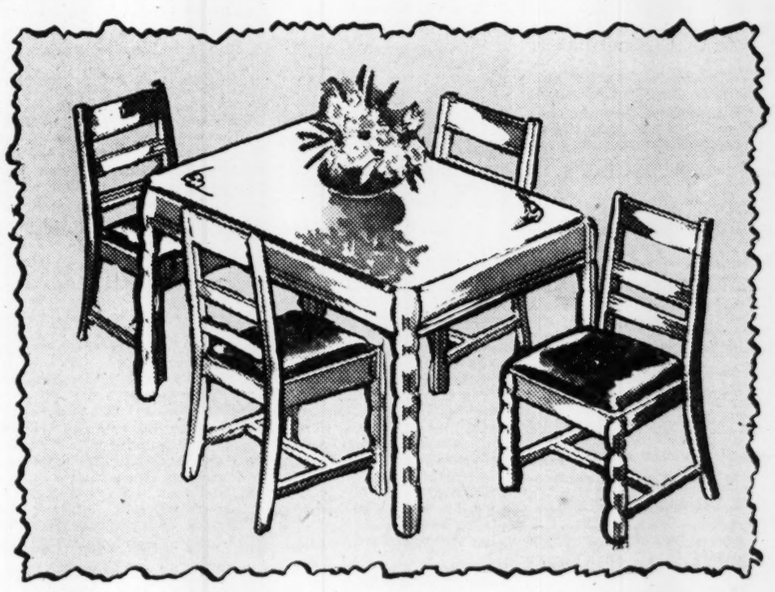

Eleven street car lines in Atlanta will be changed over into trackless trolleys during 1946, aid Mitchell, with the rest of the work completed in 1947.

"Included in the 1946 budget," continued Mitchell, "is construction of about 83 miles of overhead electric lines for trackless trolleys, purchase of 140 new trackless trolley coaches, included 30 equipped with air conditioning, erection of a new trackless trolley garage and construction of four new substations to supply electric power to the transportation system."

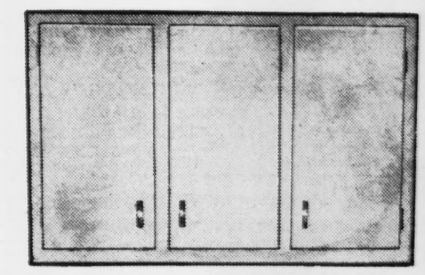

Other items on the program, Mitchell said, are: The building of 85 miles of new high-tension transmission lines, 925 miles of distribution lines and 43 new power substations and, in addition, an increase in the capacity of 116 other substations and the construction of about 650 miles of new rural electric lines. This program, Mitchell said, will serve more than 15,000 new urban customers and more than 3,300 farm customers.

To Deny the People's Will?

By a vote of 37 to 7, the state senate has passed a bill providing a merit—or civil service—system for state employes.

The measure, which would result in most state jobs being filled on the basis of ability rather than politics, was passed on the urging of Senate President Frank Gross, who introduced it.

President Gross, who had taken the floor to deny reports by overzealous partisans that all controversial issues were being held up in the senate pending house action on the succession bill, had called for enactment of "home rule and merit system laws, as provided for in the new constitution."

Despite its commendable action on the merit system, however, the senate continues to delay consideration of an effective home rule measure. And, unless this latter reform can be passed by the senate today or tomorrow, there is little chance of it getting to a vote in the house before next Monday's adjournment.

Meanwhile, local measures continue to clog the wheels of the state's legislative machinery.

While important statewide proposals are being neglected, legislators from all over the state are called upon to decide such strictly local matters as whether the Athens city council shall appoint departmental heads with or without recommendations from the mayor.

At a cost of several thousand dollars a day, solons from every county in Georgia are enacting such inconsequential local measures as that providing that the court reporter of Spalding county shall be paid a salary rather than on the basis of fees.

If this session of the state legislature has the slightest essence of an excuse for delaying passage of home rule, it is because it has been too busy considering the type of strictly local legislation which home rule would do away with.

The people of Georgia want home rule, real home rule and not just another cleverly worded subterfuge.

The new constitution for which they voted overwhelmingly last summer provides explicitly that the general assembly SHALL provide it.

This session of the state legislature will have flagrantly flaunted the public's wishes if it fails to enact it.

And the people should respond by repudiating at the coming elections any and all who have a part in the failure.

No More Minority Governors

If all who declare so fervently and frequently for democracy are giving it anything but lip service, a bill introduced in the state legislature by Rep. Claude Pittman of Bartow county will be passed with but little opposition.

Rep. Pittman, a capable and conscientious legislator who fights consistently for governmental reform, proposes that the state's election laws be amended to provide that never again can a candidate be elected by less than a majority of those voting.

Nor does Rep. Pittman propose to change in any way the county unit system so cherished by rural legislators.

His measure merely provides that a majority rather than a plurality of the vote in a county shall determine who shall receive that county's unit vote. If a candidate failed to receive more votes than the combined vote against him, a runover between the two highest candidates would be necessary. This would make for genuine majority rule.

The strength of Georgia's old-line political faction stems from their ability to garner from twenty-five to thirty per cent of the state's vote, while getting any number of other candidates in the field to split the balance of the ballots. If Georgia wants to be rid, once and for all, of minority government, then let the current legislature enact Claude Pittman's logical proposal.

Why the Delay on Georgia's Beach Park?

The State Parks Department currently is receiving bids on the construction of a number of additional cabins for Vogel State Park.

These units, 20 or 30 in number, will provide vacation accommodations for those Georgians who wish to spend several days in the state's beautiful mountain park. The demand for them is great and the expenditure for their construction will be self-liquidated in a very short time.

The Constitution is gratified that the state is making such progress at Vogel. But we regret that the proposed beach park on St. Simons Island is moving so slowly.

It should have been possible to advertise for bids for construction of cabins at St. Simons simultaneously with those at Vogel. The two parks, seashore and mountain, complement each other and their development should go along hand-in-hand.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Wrong Man

Editor Constitution: I was very much amused by the story printed in your Jan. 6 issue carrying a letter written by J. T. Livsey, East Point, Ga. In the article I was very unjustly accused; however, I am sure that the writer was about as much misinformed on the entire matter as he was about the representative to which he referred. I am not a member of the Special House-Senate Investigating Committee, and have never discussed sale of the Western & Atlantic railroad. It is most unfortunate that you have no way of verifying the accusations printed in this column before they go to press.

Revolution

Editor Constitution: Have just made one of my usual early spring tours of the rural section to get an idea as to what these people were thinking and their reaction to the ceiling price being put on raw cotton. Ten per cent didn't have an opinion; 90 per cent were undecidedly against it; 43 per cent of this number thought if price was set where a bale of middling one-inch staple cotton would buy less than five gallons of liquor, we would have a revolution in the south within less than 60 days.

City Manager

Editor Constitution: I see Mayor Hartsfield suggests the city of Atlanta have a bond issue.

At the same time I see the legislators of Fulton county are advertising bills to give new and more pensions, already numerous, to more office holders.

Why should these increased debts be put on us? Must the taxpayers bear the burden of supporting the nest of office holders who are begging them for their votes for jobs in every election?

The mayor, himself, had his salary increased from $7,000 to $8,000 a year during his term of office.

If he enlarges the city, of course he and all of the other office holders must get more and their number be increased, with more pensions. Is not the taxpayer the "forgotten man?"

Why should the city bond itself to provide for airports for airlines which made millions of dollars more last year than the year before?

Should not the old Atlanta spirit be revived which prevented a city officer from succeeding himself but one time, and thus stop office holders from forming political organizations and operating the city for the benefit of themselves and their friends?

I suggest a city management form of government for Atlanta. If for the county, why not for Atlanta?

Cincinnati, Ohio, and Birmingham, Ala., got themselves out of a hole doing this.

File 19

Editor Constitution: Your essay datelined Washington, Jan. 10, was well written to propagandize for the late President, but hardly sufficient to convince several million Americans who did not hate him, as you put it, but violently disagreed with his political philosophy.

Your position as editor of one of our good daily papers places you at an advantage but what you say will not convince us who think otherwise now or ever.

Our thinking does not place us at the top of the Nazi list, nor even on it, as some of you suggest, but is our own birthright, please.

Now, that you have read this, throw it in File 19 as usual, as it does not agree with you.

Carver

Editor Constitution: Please accept my sincere congratulations for the very splendid editorial appearing in the Saturday, Jan. 5, edition of The Atlanta Constitution, regarding the late Dr. George Washington Carver.

On several occasions I have noted the very liberal and fair-minded attitude that The Atlanta Constitution has assumed regarding Negroes and their problems. As the head of an educational institution for the training of Negroes, I am in a position to know that this very liberal attitude toward Negro problems and progress is very much needed, but I am sad to say, lacking in the pages of many of our newspapers. I think you and your staff need to be commended in this regard.

We've Got To Have The Real Sickness

WASHINGTON, D. C.—I had a little while here before departure so I went around and asked this expert this:

"How long," I asked, "will it be before a man can walk into a store and ask to see some white shirts at about two dollars and a half, and when they are shown him be able to say that he doesn't like that style collar and to please show him some more?"

"About two years, maybe two and a half," said this expert, "you'll get shirts before then, but not at two and a half."

I must hasten to say this man is an economist. Economists attract me as birds traditionally are attracted by designing serpents. I do not at all mean to say economists are serpents, but merely that they hypnotize me.

"What we have got to do," said this expert, "is to have the sickness of inflation."

"We've got it now," I said.

"Not enough of it," he said. "We've got to have it all. There isn't any way to avoid it. Controls have broken down in too many fields. They never were effective and so, from the beginning, it was inevitable they would break down. Inflation has been building up all along and pretty soon it will smash all controls and we will really have inflation's unkind rationing and the sickness of inflation. A lot of savings will be wiped out and the white collar people and those living on pensions and annuities will suffer. But it has got to come."

"Why?" I asked, edging closer to the serpent and hanging on his words.

"We will have inflation as long as prices tell a lie," he said. "If cotton, which I believe is a product down your way, is selling at 25 cents because there is a government subsidy payment then the price is a lie. If milk is selling at 20 cents a quart because there's a government subsidy which, if removed, would make it 25 cents, then the price of 20 cents is a lie. The same applies to wheat and corn and pants and dresses. If a dressmaker, with labor and material prices higher, can't charge but $16 for a dress that costs him about that, then he makes his profit by charging $125 for a dress which escapes by design and styling, the control prices. This dress really cost him about $25; so both prices are a lie. He can't sell one at a profit. The other he sells at a greatly inflated profit. The same applies to rayon stockings. Let us say rayon stockings were $5 a pair instead of $1.50. They would all be sold. But it would be a sort of rationing. Only the women who had that much to spend and who wanted them that badly would pay $5 per pair. After a while the price would come down. But the price of rayon stockings now is a lie. So, there aren't many."

No Millenium By now he had me. I was staring into his eyes and he was smiling pitiably. Sometimes I think economists ought to be sent around to smile at people in misfortune. They can, when talking with uninformed persons, give them the most profound smile of pity I know.

"We are not going to have any millennium," he said. "I read in newspapers that the increased efficiency developed in war work will give us greater production. I doubt it. There will be an increase in production, but not much.

"The fellow who started out making shells naturally had a low efficiency. After a few months he was good. After a year he was as good on shells as he had been on washing machines or floor sweepers, but they measured his efficiency on war work. It is a false measure. When he goes back to sweepers, washing machines, radios or automobiles or what not he will be just a little more efficient than he was in 1940. Productive efficiency increases a little every year with new tools and the natural improvement of skill.

"Don't think, either," he said, "we will have too many more workers. And you had best pray to God we don't. We had about 12 million unemployed in our best so-called normal time. And don't forget that many of the new workers developed skills only in lines they won't be able to use. Our great production figures, while a miracle of war, will not be a miracle of peace. Those figures included the tremendously accelerated production of raw materials, most of which will not now be needed."

Dejected About this time a friend came in and slapped me on the back. The spell was broken. Still, I felt low. I was just getting ready to take a trip and I had been looking forward with interest to getting away where the peaceful and small problems of Europe were to be viewed. Now I felt weak and limp and futile. The impression prevailed that he was right. I could not shake it off. One by one the controls had been broken, and, as he said, there were loopholes in them from the start. It looks as if we are going to have more of the inevitable postwar sickness before we get well.

They wanted to entertain me the night before my departure. We went to a place where there was a floor show with the dinner.

There was a dance team of Marjorie & Malloy. It happened I knew them. The economist looked at Marjorie. He was not looking pitiably, but wistfully.

"I'd give anything to meet her," he said.

"The price would be a lie," I said, "but I will arrange it." And I did. But, I still wondered if his plan meant we'd go ahead and have so much we'd all go bust again like in 1929.

ERNEST K. LINDLEY

A Justifiable Compromise

(Editor's Note: Ralph Jones, whose column appears here, is ill.)

President Truman has every reason to regret his decision to lift wage controls immediately after V-J Day. Politically it was very difficult not to lift them. The leaders of organized labor insisted that they be lifted. Organized management had been propagandizing throughout the war for the elimination of controls of all kinds at the conclusion of hostilities.

But labor, management and the general public would all have been better off if wage controls had been preserved under a formula permitting increases of, say, 2 to 15 per cent in basic hourly wage rates in the key industries. Increases within this range could have been made in most industries without price readjustments. Some undoubtedly can pay more without price increases, but when a standard is set in some industries it tends to spread to others.

The administration, however, refused to take the lead in setting a standard. In effect, it invited labor to get whatever it could in the way of wage increases within the existing price structure. Later it encouraged management to stretch its estimates of the increases possible within these limits by promising to consider price relief for manufacturers who found themselves pinched after six months' experience with higher wage scales.

Fixes Standards Now the administration has been compelled to step back in and set a standard. Despite its insistence that every demand must be considered on its own merits, the fact-finding board's recommendation in the General Motors case and the President's recommendation in the steel case do, in fact, fix a standard.

The recommendation of 19½ cents in the General Motors case had the effect of fixing a bottom limit for the President's recommendation for steel. He could propose to give the steel workers one cent less than the automobile workers only because the steel workers had received one cent more than the automobile workers in wage adjustments made in 1944.

Mr. Fairless finally offered a 15 cent increase. It may well be that from the viewpoint of the national economy as a whole, a 15 cent increase would be wiser than an 18½ cent increase. In either event, however, steel prices would have to be increased, and this increase would result in somewhat higher prices for a great range of products. But the difference of 3½ cents is surely not worth a prolonged strike in a basic industry.

Labor would be better off if it had accepted the 15 per cent increase and avoided the loss of wages from a strike. The steel industry would be better off if it paid the extra 3½ cents and avoided the loss of production from a strike.

The President's statement on the steel controversy, in effect, turned the problem over to public opinion. Yet it was hardly forceful enough to mobilize public opinion. It reflected, rather, disappointment and uncertainty about what to do next, even dismay. Most of the President's advisors were confident that when the showdown came, Fairless as well as Murray would accept Mr. Truman's own recommendation. Otherwise they would not have pushed him to the front and center of the stage.

Practical Solution The moderation of the President's statement may have reflected, also, his feeling that both labor and management are to blame for the present predicament—and some of his own advisors, as well. Henry J. Kaiser dramatized the issue much better: The difference of 3½ cents, or 2 per cent, is not worth a strike. No steel company can predict its efficiency within such a narrow margin. The patriotic thing to do is to accept the President's recommendation, and get on with production.

The increases recommended for General Motors and Steel may set a standard which is a little high, in that it will lead to price increases which will take away part of the wage increases and pinch still harder the consumers who do not get wage and salary increases. But they are compromises, and not unreasonable compromises. The practical alternatives are acceptance of these compromises, to which the government, on behalf of the general public, is now committed, or costly and prolonged strikes. There is no doubt, I think, which the great majority of the American people would prefer.

About Time He Had an Assistant

ROBERT QUILLEN

Times Have Changed

I was standing on the street talking to a broker when his small son approached and said: "Mom wants some money for butter." When the boy had gone his way, the broker turned to me and said: "I am not like some married men. When my wife asks for money to buy a pound of butter, I don't count out the exact amount. I just give her a dollar and never ask for the change."

That was years ago, but the ways of husbands have changed little in that region.

During a recent broadcast, women in the studio audience were asked whether the wife or husband should carry the pocketbook. With only a few exceptions, they said the husband should. But what if both had jobs? In that case, said the majority, the money should be equally divided or each should keep his earnings.

But you can't manage a home on that basis. Somebody must pay the rent—or pay taxes, insurance and repair bills; somebody must pay for groceries and doctoring and life insurance and all other operating costs, and the one who does it must carry the pocketbook or write the checks.

In your father's or grandfather's time, when woman's place was in the home and almost none worked in public except the chamber maid, the waitress, the school teacher and the milliner, it was taken for granted that the husband should carry the money. The wife asked for what she needed, or gave the husband a list of household needs as he left for work in the morning. He did all the buying. Whatever the wife received was a gift.

Conditions have changed, except in certain groups and among the unlettered in the sticks.

Those who make a study of such matters tell us that women now do more than 80 per cent of the buying. They also own more than 80 per cent of the nation's wealth, most of it acquired by inheritance or as life insurance.

There are still money lovers who dole out each dime under protest, but these work too hard and too anxiously to get the money they love and so are gathered to their fathers in mid-life, leaving all to their wives.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

HOME RULE IS STILL A MYTH

(Albany Journal)

Last summer, the people of Georgia went to the polls and voted overwhelmingly for a new state constitution. Many who voted for this were under the impression (as there were several other things, including a proviso whereby a governor cannot succeed himself in office) that effective home rule would be instituted and thereby save the taxpayers considerable money when the state legislature convenes.

Alas and alack: voters now find that the new state constitution did not make any provisions for home rule, and evidence of that is that more than 30 purely local bills have already been dumped into the legislative hopper.

It simply means that Georgia will continue along the same old route, taking up the time of the state legislature as to whether Hog Wallow can increase its bonded indebtedness or Piney Poke extend its sewerage system.

The matter of local legislation provides a football for solons to kick about; an opportunity to "trade." You vote for my measure and I'll vote for yours. It is extremely doubtful that this practice will ever be removed from our legislature. Time and time efforts have been made to institute a home rule measure but to no success. Georgians — many of them—thought they had it when they voted for the new constitution. We now see where they were mistaken.

Will Remodel To Suit Tenant?

Plans have been completed for a $1,650,000 addition to the White House.

It will be added to the west end. This will hardly please conservatives. They feel the left wing has been overemphasized already.

Included in the new portion will be offices, filing and storage space, and an auditorium. The fact that the latter will seat only 375 persons gives the lie to the rumor that it is being built for the regular Tuesday night meetings of the Missouri Society.

Mr. Truman's remodeling plans are the first major changes in the White House in a number of years. His predecessor lost his enthusiasm for enlarging things after his experience with the supreme court.

In fact, the only addition Mr. Roosevelt made to the executive mansion was a pair of doghouses . . . for Falla and Elliott.

Such extensive changes in the White House are distinctly discouraging to Republicans. Truman would hardly be going to so much trouble if he had any intention of moving in a couple of years.

M. L. ST. JOHN

Landslide Victory Or a Small Defeat?

A leading opponent of the second-term amendment told us that it is possible for the proposal to pass by a landslide.

This is not propaganda for the amendment. Because this same opponent was quick to prophesy that the ban-lifting effort would fail by eight votes.

"Should the amendment get the required 137 votes before the end of the roll call, however, remaining opponents would rush to get on the bandwagon and make their peace with Gov. Arnall when they realize he would serve another four years," the practical opponent observed.

This opponent does not believe the landslide and bandwagon would work in reverse, though. Even if the opposition obtained its necessary 69 votes, the remaining proponents would stick by Arnall because he remains in office for several months more.

A leading supporter of the amendment also saw possibility of a landslide victory, on the same basis as the above opponent. Still another supporter saw possibility of a big margin either way. He said that there are at least 20 legislators who are bandwagon climbers, who want to be on the winning team regardless of which side wins. They are quiet now, leaving both sides to count them as probable supporters—but if they get a chance during the roll call, they will jump to the winning side.

Margin of Five There will be no landslide either way, another opponent told us. And his view is the composite view of many house members whom we sounded out. This man declared that the vote would be so close that the issue would not be decided until the roll call is practically completed. This would leave no chance for jumping on bandwagons.

Our spot poll of several members on both sides of the question showed that the vote will be close—very close. Supporters of the ban-lifting movement are increasing their victory claims and have enthusiastically demanded a showdown on the house floor. Opponents are weakening in their marginal claims, are not desirous of a floor fight, but they still believe they can defeat the amendment.

The most enthusiastic supporters claim 145 votes. It takes 137 to make up the two-thirds constitutional majority. The amendment got 127 last summer, failing by 10 votes. The proponents can sit down with a pencil and check the roll to show you 18 new supporters who either were absent or voted against the proposal last time.

The most enthusiastic opponents claim the amendment will fail by the same margin it did last summer. Not the same voters, because there have been shifts both ways since last year, but by the same margin of 10 votes. Last week these opponents were claiming it would fail by 20 votes. That's admitting progress for the amendment, but not enough. Less enthusiastic opponents believe the amendment will get as high as 132 or 135 votes this time—barely short of the necessary 137.

Less enthusiastic supporters believe the amendment will barely pass the mark—getting 139 or possibly 142 votes.

Win by five votes, or lose by five votes. That's the odds given by legislative leaders themselves in this close battle on a gubernatorial term. Of course, the bill hasn't hit the floor yet. That is the big stick the opposition possesses—holding it off the floor. It is an advantage which the amendment supporters, without the usual administrative leadership in the house, is trying to tear down.

Legislative Sidelights Elliott Hagan, former Screven representative who appeared on stages to imitate Gene Talmadge, is a regular visitor. . . . Just a Rhyme a Day

"Night club orchestras were blaring a wild cacophony, the brass sections drowning the piano and violins in a sea of solid sound."—Excerpt from New York column.

Frequently we sit and wonder while the bands like summer thunder
Crash about us in a storm of strident sound,
If in all the world there's not a soft and soothing obligato
Or some quiet piece the gang might kick around.
But they seem to have the notion they should raise a great commotion,
Lift the roof and blast the planets from the skies,
And the one who toots the loudest is the one who should be proudest
And entitled to the glory and the prize.
As for hearing the piano, it could be out in Montana,
And the fiddle cries but never can be heard—
While the squealing ocarina, like a bat out of Helena,
Turns the sweetest notes of music into curd.
Shades of Schubert and Beethoven, and of imps whose feet or cloven,
Ghosts of Verdi, Brahms, Mascagni, Strauss and Liszt—
You should thank your lucky stars that the syncopated bars
Of the present is the music you have missed.

THOMAS L. STOKES

The President Will Not Compromise

WASHINGTON.—What is most striking about President Truman's lengthy message to congress is his stubborn insistence upon his program for the general welfare of the country as he sees it.

Calmly and reasonably, he throws it right back to his enemies in congress, of which there are many.

Why does he persist, in so many parts of his program, in challenging the conservative leaders of his party, most of them from the south? They are in a fine strategical position in congress to thwart him. They shout that he is splitting the party. Why doesn't he compromise with them?

Without trying to read Mr. Truman's mind, or to speak for him, it is possible to cite a few facts which justify his behavior, both from the standpoint of national welfare and from the standpoint of plain politics.

FOR ONE THING the only reason-for-being of the Democratic party is as a progressive party. That is its essential faith. That is the only way it appeals and wins victories at the polls. It has learned by experience that when it submits to the blandishments of those who cry for "party harmony"—by which they mean to let the conservatives have their way—and runs a conservative candidate with a conservative program, it loses. That is courteous and gallant, but hardly worthwhile.

If the country is conservative-minded, it never elects a conservative Democrat. It wants to be sure, so it goes all the way and selects a Republican. That has been demonstrated again and again.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT moulded the Democratic party into a great progressive party. The truth is that still today the preponderant majority of those who make up the Democratic party are progressively inclined.

But, through a peculiar circumstance, a conservative minority has the controlling influence in the party in congress. This is the southern so-called "leadership" which maintains its power there through the seniority rule. But that "leadership" does not represent the rank and file of the party. That is clear.

If Mr. Truman would kowtow to this minority he might get along a shade better in congress, but not noticeably so. They might toss him a crumb or two, but they would not give him anything important in the way of progressive legislation.

IF THE PRESIDENT compromised there, he would lose strength with his rank-and-file support outside which is the bulk of the party and counts up in votes. He knows that. He is a shrewd politician, as well as sincere in his basic progressivism. He knows, too, some other things about this controlling minority in congress which are important in deciding his course.

One is that they can't even swing the people in their own southern states in national elections. Mr. Truman sat in the senate when they fought Mr. Roosevelt and threatened "revolts." They were going to bolt the party and take their people with them.

What happened?

MR. ROOSEVELT, in every election, carried every southern state. Why? Because the people were for him.

This minority is acting up again today. There are siren voices to compromise with this "party leadership." You know, everybody gets together.

They may "wreck" Mr. Truman by blockading his program in congress with the help of Republicans. But they can't "wreck" him with the rank-and-file of the Democratic party, except as they might demonstrate that the Democratic party can no longer act.

THEY WOULD GO DOWN with it, and some of them are willing to do that, seemingly. That might happen. But, by compromising with them, Mr. Truman would go down, too, for theirs is not the course of victory in these times.

So he refuses to compromise, and in the polls he still has a high popularity rating, in the south as well as elsewhere.

The reason is found in his program, as in the Roosevelt program. It holds hope for a better way of living in America.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Vague Reports Do No Good

WASHINGTON.—The job of a newspaper reporter is to get the facts, including the who, what, when, where and how, put them on paper or phone them to the shop. We have scores of reporters with the American Army in far places of the world but we have had no detailed information from them concerning the conduct of "brass-hats" who, in general terms, are alleged to have surrounded themselves with luxury at the expense of their commands and to the neglect of the enlisted soldiers and the destruction of morale and discipline.

On the other hand, there have been vague reports of such selfishness, naming no names.

For example: "One young officer assured me that his gold-braided commander was living in a sumptuous home, staffed by 32 Filipino houseboys."

This dispatch from Manila carried the credit line of the A. P.

INASMUCH as soldier publications can not be allowed to discuss the personal affairs of commanding officers, the civilian correspondent working for a private employer has a duty to get such information for publication where it will do the most good. He might risk removal from his assignment by order of the officer thus exposed but more likely the case would be carried to the War Department and the officer, himself, would be relieved and punished.

It is no difficult feat of reporting to call on the "gold-braided" commander and ask him how many houseboys he is using and, for verification, to make a personal check among the help. But merely to relay such gossip to the United States on the word of a junior officer who might have been repeating gossip and might have had a personal grudge is just bad newspaper work and smacks more of the night club school of journalism than of the conventional city room. Incidentally, the term "gold-braided" here is an example of the one-word smear description introduced by the jerked-English weeklies which have their hates and house-pets, the former commonly described as "pot-bellied" or "beetle-browed" and the latter as "forthright" or "square-shooting." There is a suggestion here that the officer under discussion wears gold braid merely to please his personal vanity when the fact is that by regulation he is required to wear it.

AGAIN: "ANOTHER young officer complained of a lieutenant-colonel who, he said, managed to wangle two private homes on the claim that he had to have space 'to entertain distinguished visitors.'

"'His distinguished visitors have consisted of Red Cross and USO girls,' the young officer said. This in a city where housing is at a high premium."

IN A VERY short time any reporter who was willing to make the effort could have nailed down the facts as to this rumor. The best way, usually, is to go to the man concerned. If he is guilty he probably will bluster or threaten. Then you have him. You just make notes of what he is saying and tell him that of course you are going to quote him verbatim. Ask him who his distinguished guests were, and check him on that. Ask him whether it is not true that his guests have been mainly Red Cross and USO girls. Describe his houses and his scale of living, state his duties, identify his unit of command and, for contrast, describe the condition in which his men are living and the nature of their duties. Present the facts to his superior, quote him, too, and report his action, if any. That is the obligation of a free press.

Still again: "Another officer, in the Navy, said men in his unit were scandalized when an impatient captain sent an 80-foot launch on a tour of the harbor in search of the ship which was doing his laundry.

"'It cost the taxpayers better than a hundred bucks just so that bird could wear a clean shirt,' said the young officer."

WITHOUT THE captain's name and verification of the incident this again is sheer gossip.

These reports may be true but they may be false. As presented they do no good but, on the contrary, tend to bring all officers into contempt and to destroy discipline and confidence at home in the men commanding American civilian soldiers and soldiers overseas, including thousands of conscientious, able patriots.

THE CIVILIAN correspondent who should get himself kicked out for giving names and verified facts without such nasty little escape-words as "allegedly," "purportedly" and "presumedly" would be upheld all the way from his home office to Washington and, if the situation were really as bad as all that, would bring about spectacular reforms and become the perennial guest of the American Legion at all future conventions with a suite to himself and a case of bourbon, free.

CHANNING COPE

Two Acres Can Feed the Family

In talking with E. C. Westbrook, the cotton and tobacco specialist of the Georgia Extension Service about the Sam McCall bulletin, which had been sent us by a thoughtful Atlanta spiritual leader, and which we discussed briefly in Monday's column, Westbrook brought to light the venerable story of the Scotch farmer who was warned by a Georgia neighbor, not to try to make a living from a mere 50 acres of land. The Scotsman replied that if he could not make a living on 50 acres, he would sell 25 acres; he was certain he could make a living on 25 acres. Westbrook allowed in this connection that most of us were not handling our acres any too wisely, and showed great interest in the bulletin describing the methods by which Sam McCall, ex-slave, produced 320 bushels of corn on two acres, and on another occasion, one bale of cotton on one-eighth of an acre. (Incidentally, the bulletin is available to anyone who will request it of this column.)

IT WOULD be hard to exaggerate the amount of foodstuffs which could be grown on two acres of land. Especially, if the two acres were under irrigation. The average farm family, with its mind set on feeding itself, could grow enough garden sass, peanuts, sweet potatoes, rutabagas, black-eyed peas, watermelons, Irish potatoes, edible soybeans and sweet corn to cram every storehouse on the farm. The garden sass on two acres of irrigated, well-fertilized land would keep the family so charged with energy and that feeling of well being, that it could lick the world. Yes, and feed the neighbors also.

Brother Westbrook felt pretty good about the tobacco situation, also. He has been guiding the Georgia tobacco farmers from the day the first tobacco was planted and has had a part in its growth, similar to the part Dr. Jarnagin has had in the livestock progress of the state. Tobacco is now one of our very best money crops.

WILL JOHNSON, our man-of-all-work at Yellow River, has been after us to get him seed from some heavier type of tobacco so that he can produce tobacco for his own use. He does not like the lighter leaves which we grow in south Georgia, claiming that they do not have much personality. Will grows tobacco on a rich piece of ground near an abandoned well, and some of the plants grow as tall as persimmon trees. He makes twists of the leaves for chewing, and mangles the leaves for use in his pipe. Putting this problem up to tobacco specialist, Westbrook, he was of the opinion that the element called "personality" by Will, was none other than nicotine. He recommended a brand of tobacco called "Lizard's Tail" and stated that Will would be able to find plenty of personality in this heavier tobacco leaf. We will follow this recommendation and provide the seed, the land and the fertilizer, meanwhile hoping that "Lizard's Tail" will not prove to be as vicious as it sounds.

Will hasn't heard of these plans as yet, which goes to prove that even as we sleep, the Fates are at work on solutions to our problems. Or does it?

BOB HOPE

It Says Here

Everyone is getting set for television. I've made some concrete plans. When television gets here, I'm going back to mixing concrete.

But the people who predict things are predicting that within a year there will be 12 to 16 hours of television programs a day in metropolitan areas and, shortly thereafter, all of the hi-jinks now referred to as radio, will be illustrated.

My sponsor thinks my radio show would be good for television except for just one thing. But he's got an answer for that, too: he's going to bill me as the "Masked Marvel." Prof. Colonna will be a natural. Can you imagine that kisser suddenly showing up in 20,000,000 homes? It should have people living in trees in no time.

It should be very interesting when they do get all the radio programs switched over so you can see them. When that happens, a lot of the actors who play those teen-age kids will have to shave off their mustaches and start wearing their toupees to work.

Bing Crosby fans will have to have two sets in their living rooms if they want to get him all in. And they'll have to sell a windshield wiper with the sets so that people who tune in on "Mr. Anthony's Program" can keep the tears off the screen.

If static ever starts interfering with the reception it might cause some odd mixups. I can see it now . . . the door to "Inner Sanctum" opens and out comes Baby Snooks and Mr. District Attorney riding on the Lone Ranger's horse.

I saw one of the new sets they're putting out now. It has dials for the radio, knobs for the phonograph, and buttons for the television. It looked like the dashboard of a B-29. But buyers won't have to worry . . . with each set they sell, distributors will throw in 20 hours of link trainer instruction.

GALLUP POLL

GOP Leads In Midwest

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—Although Democratic party leaders are going after midwest farm votes this year with renewed intensity, all evidence to date shows that the Republican party is holding is own in the farm areas. The Democrats will have to turn some near-miracles if they expect to walk off with a majority of midwest farm votes in 1946 or 1948.

Latest soundings of farm sentiment by the Institute find that only slightly more than four farmers in every 10 in the mid-west area say they should vote Democratic if a Presidential election were held today.

In the solid south it is a different picture, of course, with the southern farmers still strongly democratic, in fact, more democratic now than they were in 1944.

Farm sentiment was measured in the following question:

"If a Presidential election were being held today, which party would you vote for—the Democratic or Republican?"

The vote of farmers in the mid-west states—states which are of crucial importance in the electoral college—follows:

MID-WEST FARMERS

	Rep.	Dem.
1936 Election	44%	56%
1940 Election	55	45
1944 Election	57	43
TODAY	58	42

The percentages represent the average for farm sentiment in the combined area of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota and Missouri.

THE TRUMAN administration can count as usual, however, on a strong backlog of southern farm votes. With the southern farmers counted in, the picture of total farm sentiment is more favorable to the Democrats.

ALL FARMERS

	Rep.	Dem.
1936	41%	59%
1940	46	54
1944	52	48
TODAY	49	51

The increase in Democratic percentage this year as compared to 1944 comes about because of a rise in democratic strength among southern farmers. Whereas the vote among southern farmers in 1944 is estimated at 66 per cent Democratic, today the survey finds approximately three out of four southern farmers favoring the Democrats if a Presidential election were held.

This gain, however, is of no particular value to the Democrats in a Presidential election, because increased strength in the solid south does not bring any increase in electoral votes.

A relatively small Democratic gain in mid-western states could yield much richer political dividends in an election year than a very substantial gain in states where a Democratic majority has always been assured.

JOHN MARVIN RAST

ENABLING POWER

If thou knowest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldest have asked of Him, and He would have given thee living water—John 4:10.

It is comforting to know that in our seeking, God through Christ is seeking us. It was so with the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well. Rather vaguely was she seeking: God, persistently. Too many of us might voice the confession of St. Augustine, "For I was afraid, O God, Thou wouldst hear me too soon and heal me at once, of my disease of lust which I wished to satiate rather than to see extinguished." Yet what God did with Augustine, the redemption which He worked, transforming the man into a saint, He can do with any one of us. The requisite is that we seek Him with all our being.

HAROLD MARTIN

More About Daisy, Some of It Significant

That column about Daisy in the Sunday paper caused a surprising amount of stir. In the two years that Daisy was with me I guess I wrote 5,000 words about her, all of them extolling her as a fine cook and nurse and as a good and faithful servant in all respects. Nobody, as I can recall, wrote me to commend me for thus publicly recognizing the merits of a member of the Negro race. However, since Sunday, many have written me to take me strongly to task for revealing that Daisy, after many months of honest service, suddenly went bad and started taking things around the house.

Some of the letters were so angrily vituperative that they didn't make much sense, so there's no point in discussing them here. Others, though, were well thought out and written with restraint, though their tone, too, was critical. They made points that should be discussed.

TWO LETTERS, one from John H. Davis, of Atlanta, an honorably discharged ex-sailor, and another from C. Bernard Nichols, of Augusta, developed the same theme. They said that the publication of the story about Daisy would work an unwarranted hardship upon thousands of honest and faithful servants and on thousands of honest and competent Negroes outside of domestic service. I was in effect, said Nichols, persecuting the whole Negro race because of the misdeeds of one member.

I don't quite believe that is true. Thousands of people have their "Daisys." They know that there are good and bad Negroes, just as there are good and bad white folks. What they think of the Negro as a person is shaped by their own experiences with Negroes. The fact that my experience with Daisy was similar to what they had experienced with their Negro employes didn't suddenly inflame them against the Negro race.

AND ANOTHER thing, I didn't write that story about Daisy as a Negro, but about Daisy as a person.

But to get back to the letters. One of them, from G. Lewis Chandler, of Atlanta, made a lot of sense. It said: "To be repaid for kindness with theft, lies and exploitation is a bitter pill to swallow . . . yet the experience does not really justify a reaction of surprise, disappointment and cold resolve. Rather it should create a thirst for real understanding, for getting down to fundamentals, for seeing first causes, for realizing where the true responsibility (perhaps blame) lies. Daisy, like Bigger Thomas in "Native Son" is a victim—a member of a race in which many are stunted and warped by the evils of a third class citizenship. Though there are great, great numbers in that race who live constructively, creatively, and decently, despite such handicaps, there are many who do not use the present social milieu for achievement but as an opportunity to resort to prevarication, parasitism, hypocrisy, flattery, sloth, disorder and immoral acts. . . . Private and individual altruism, such as yours to Daisy, cannot help them very much. Such kindness and good intentions as yours and Mr. Dalton's in "Native Son" must become official, national, standard—the accepted practice of the public, of the courts, of the government, of tradition, or the Daisys and the Bigger Thomases will continue to create unnecessary problems, regrets and misunderstandings.

"I do not condone Daisy's misdeeds. But I can understand why she and others like her behave as they do. Its the inevitable working out of an old principle: In the keen struggle for survival, the weak and the underprivileged will always develop a complex (and a technique, too) for the practice of subterfuge and underground tactics."

I think that makes sense. I am not such of a psychologist, but I have sometimes sat down and tried to reason out why I should feel as I do toward the Negro race, and why the sight of a Negro in trouble causes me so much concern, and why, I, like nearly every other white person of any feeling will go out of his way to try to do something, personally, for the individual Negro. I think that feeling of sympathy stems from a deep, subconscious realization that we do hold the Negro in a kind of thralldom. I believe that we feel a deep shame about that, and that, lacking the courage to stand up in public and demand for the Negro equality of opportunity, the right to work where his talents entitle him to work, the right to an education, the right to an adequate wage, we salve our consciences by acts of kindness to the individual. The result is that we are overly kind to him as an individual and do nothing about the handicaps that beset him as a race.

AND I THINK that the individual Negro, deep down inside, no matter how pleasant his own individual lot may be, nor how well his employer treats him personally, feels a deep and undying resentment at the handicaps which the white man has imposed upon his race. And that sometimes he, moved by this deep resentment, can accept the white man's kindness and then steal from him or break his word to him, without a twinge of conscience. The white man salves his own conscience, the black man his pride.

If over the years we can work to remove, as over the years we have been working to remove these handicaps that warp and twist the relations between the races, the cause of our trouble will be gone. The white man can in good conscience withdraw the patronizing paternalism which heaps upon the Negro, the Negro will have no need to betray the white man's confidence.

EMMANUEL'S COIN COLLECTION BACK: NOW AMONG EUROPE'S RICHEST MEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy's coin collection, considered by numismatists as the world's greatest, has been retrieved from a German general by the Allied military authorities in northern Italy.

The collection, says Aftonbladet of Stockholm, which is valued at $40,000,000 and is the only one in the world containing a complete set of all Italian medieval coins, had been captured by the Germans during the fighting in northern Italy and carried to the royal castle in Monza.

The return of the collection makes Victor Emmanuel, who has written a book on Italian coins which is considered a standard work on the subject, one of the three richest men in Europe.

How Training For Reservists Works at Air Base

Addressing a meeting of the Atlanta Civitan Club yesterday at the Athletic Club, Capt. Edgar T. Neal, commanding officer of the Atlanta Naval Air Station, outlined the Naval Aviation Reserve training program.

"At the Atlanta Naval Air Station the work of organizing the Reserve Air Unit has been going on for some time," he stated, "with the purpose of forming air groups that could go aboard aircraft carriers, a squadron of observation and scouting planes to go aboard a cruiser division, and a squadron of patrol bombers.

HOW PROGRAM WORKS

"Here is how it works: In the Atlanta air area, which comprises all of Georgia, South Carolina and eastern Alabama, live a great many men who during the past war were naval aviators, or who in some capacity served with the aeronautical organization of the Navy or Marine Corps. We want them to remain excellent fliers or good technicians by joining the Naval Air Reserve, keeping their hands in the latest technical developments.

"The Naval Air Reserve program as planned calls for the Air Reserve to be made up of two groups—the ready reserve group, composed of pilots who will fly about 100 hours a year, and the standby group, consisting of men who will fly 50 hours a year on a voluntary basis. The standby group will include men in the older age brackets or those who, due to civilian jobs, cannot attend regular drills.

QUALIFICATIONS HIGH

"In the Naval Air Reserve program the pilot qualifications will be high and for that reason young men with recent fleet experience are desired. We want them to attend regular drills, which will be scattered throughout the month and scheduled on days the average man has free. Equipment used in drills and aircraft used in flight will be the latest, and the maintenance of them will be by qualified men. In addition, each man in the ready reserve will be required to make a two-week cruise every summer on an aircraft carrier to keep his technique of landing on carriers."

"The Navy Department has designated 21 air stations within the United States as bases for reserve training and we hope that number will be increased to 25 before long," he continued. "In Atlanta will be stationed permanently 28 officers and 357 enlisted personnel. We will have 48 fleet type aircraft for the boys to fly as well as many utility types.

Thieves Particular, Policemen Learn

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The thieves who broke into Actress Susan Hayward's car here were mighty particular.

Police reported Tuesday they tossed away a white quilted robe, valued at $100. It was found in an alley.

Still missing, however, are two tailored suits and a second robe, valuation $290.

FOR HEROIC ACHIEVEMENT—Twin children of Lt. J. P. Allen Jr., Atlantan who was fatally wounded by a Japanese bullet on Luzon, accept for their father the posthumous award of the Bronze Star medal from Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, in ceremonies held here yesterday. Seven-year-old Spencer Allen holds the medal while Sister Sara admires it.

J. P. Allen Jr. Medal Presented

The seven-year-old twin children of the late Lt. J. P. Allen Jr., received the Atlantan's posthumous award of the Bronze Star Medal in ceremonies presided over by Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks here yesterday.

Lt. Allen, a native Atlantan associated for years here with his father in the department store business, was fatally wounded by a Japanese bullet in Luzon, Philippine Islands, on Feb. 11, 1945. The citation accompanying the award lauded his "heroic achievement in connection with military operations against the enemy" on that date, when he exposed himself to intense hostile fire to direct the fire of his own unit.

Lt. Allen entered the service in February, 1942, and was stationed at Fort McPherson and Fort Benning prior to going overseas. He was educated at Virginia Military Academy, Georgia Tech, and the University of Georgia.

Present at the ceremony here in addition to Sara and Spencer Allen, recipients of the posthumous award, were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Allen Sr., Lt. Allen's wife, Mrs. Chauncey Battey and two sisters, Mrs. Kenneth Campbell and Mrs. Jesse Shelton, all of Atlanta.

Three Powers Will Share German Fleet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(UP) The State Department announced Monday night that operable surface units of the German fleet, including 30 U-boats, will be divided equally among the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union. The remainder of the German fleet shall be destroyed, it added.

The department said this decision was made at the Berlin conference and a tri-partite naval commission.

The three powers now are considering the commission's report. Its recommendation on allocating the principal units, however, have been accepted and the division is being made.

The announcement said that "surplus U-boats" in United Kingdom ports already have been sunk in accordance with the Berlin agreement.

Mrs. W. H. C. Terrell Succumbs at 73

Mrs. Gertrude P. Terrell, 73, of 29 Peachtree place, N. W., the widow of William Henry Clay Terrell, died yesterday morning at her home.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow at Spring Hill. Dr. Fred Chenault will officiate. Burial will be in West View.

Mrs. Terrell was born and reared in Thaxton, Va., but had lived in Atlanta for nearly 50 years. She was a member of the Good Friends Club of the Walker Street Methodist church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Nancy Struppa, Mrs. F. W. Rose and Miss Grace Terrell; two sons, W. L. Terrell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and James H. Terrell, of Charlotte, N. C.

William L. Rallis, 47, of 637 Orme circle, N. E., a retired restaurant operator, died yesterday morning at his home following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday at the Greek Orthodox church, with the Rev. Panos Constantinides officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

A native of Greece, Mr. Rallis came to Atlanta from South Dakota in 1939. He was a member of the Greek Orthodox church.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rallis, of Greece; his brother, Dennis Rallis, of Greece; three sisters, Mrs. Harry Katsikas and Mrs. K. Fotopoulos, of Greece, and Mrs. Dennis Zakas, of Atlanta, and several nieces and nephews.

LAWSON DENIES LIBRARY DRIVE

Beware the magazine subscription solicitor who says your purchase will go for the library fund at Lawson General hospital!

The public relations office at Lawson has received reports that two men wearing military discharge buttons have been conducting this subscription racket at Marietta place. Since there are plenty of funds available for the library at Lawson and furthermore almost every known magazine can be had by the patients, there can be no basis other than illegal for the subscription solicitors, officers at Lawson point out.

Instances where two women have been approached by the solicitors at Marietta place have been confirmed, while similar solicitations probably have been, or will be, made at other points in the city.

ATLANTA'S DRIVE FOR CLOTHING LAGS

Leaders of the campaign in Atlanta to collect clothing for the needy people of the world reported yesterday that approximately 100,000 articles of clothing have been turned in.

This is only one-fifth of the 500,000 garments set as a quota for the drive in Atlanta. The drive is thus lagging far behind expectations.

Meanwhile the people in the war-torn countries of Europe are freezing. Filipinos, under Jap rule for nearly four years, are ragged.

Meanwhile there are still old clothes stored away in the closets and attics of Atlanta homes.

Will those old clothes be brought out of hiding NOW and turned in to fire stations or other collection points in time to do some good?

W. H. Shippen Rites To Be Held Today

Funeral services for William H. Shippen, of 2559 Peachtree road, N. E., prominent Atlanta real estate operator who died at a private hospital Monday night, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Spring Hill with Dr. Monroe F. Swilley officiating. The body will be taken to Louisville, Ky., for burial.

Mr. Shippen, father of William H. Shippen Jr., former Atlanta newspaperman now with the Washington Star, was president of Shippen Brothers Lumber Company in Ellijay for many years. He moved to Atlanta in 1926 and had been active in real estate in this city since then.

Jerrold Cahill, 78, Writer, Succumbs

Jerrold Cahill, 78, of 320 Crew street, S. W., writer and mathematics expert, died at a private hospital Monday night after being in ill health for several months.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes with the Rev. William Huck officiating. Burial will be in Magnolia cemetery.

Mr. Cahill, a native of Maine, had been a resident of Atlanta for the past 25 years. He was formerly employed as writer for McGraw-Hill Publishing Company in New York, and was the author of articles dealing with mathematical problems which appeared in national magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post.

He attended Central Baptist church, and was a member of the adult Bible class there.

Mrs. Ed Couch, 69, Dies; Rites To Be Tomorrow

Mrs. Mattie Adams Couch, 69, of 1056 Longley avenue, N. W., wife of Ed Couch, of Couch & Sons, died yesterday at a private hospital after an illness of a few days.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 tomorrow at Northwest Baptist church with the Rev. K. B. Robertson officiating. Burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery under the direction of West View Peachtree Chapel.

Mrs. Couch, a native of Villa Rica, Ga., spent most of her adult life in Atlanta. She was a member of Northwest Baptist church.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son by a former marriage, T. E. Adams; two grandsons, Tommy and Carl Adams; a brother, Will Miller, all of Atlanta; two sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Whaley, of Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. J. M. Burge, of Atlanta.

Marcus Farbstein, 92, Realty Operator, Dies

Marcus Farbstein, 92, retired real estate operator, formerly of Athens, Ga., died yesterday at a private hospital after an illness of several days.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Greenberg & Flinn Funeral Home.

Mr. Farbstein, a native of Russia, lived in Athens, Ga., several years before coming to Atlanta 20 years ago. He was a member of Synagogue-Ahavath Achim.

He is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Harry Edison, of St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Julius Meyers, Mrs. Louis Cohen, Mrs. Rebecca Piem, and Mrs. Esther Goldwasser, all of Atlanta, and a son, Casper Farbstein, of Beaufort, S. C.

MORTUARY

GEORGE M. PERDUE

LEGION OF MERIT—Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, commanding general, Fourth Service Command, presents an Atlantan, Maj. Arthur L. Harris, with the Legion of Merit. The award, made yesterday afternoon, cited the Atlantan as "eminently successful in overcoming extremely difficult problems and providing urgent military needs for packaging and paper materials while serving in the Production Division, Army Service Forces.

Maj. Harris Given Legion of Merit For ASF Service

Maj. Arthur L. Harris, Atlantan, has been awarded the Legion of Merit for "overcoming extremely difficult problems and providing urgent military needs for packaging and paper materials while serving in the Production Division, Army Service Forces, from January, 1943, to August, 1945."

The award was made here yesterday in ceremonies presided over by Maj. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, commanding general of the Fourth Service Command.

Also present at the ceremony wer Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Harris Sr., and a sister, Mrs. Harry Ogden, all of Atlanta.

Mayor Hartsfield, Engineer Chief Have 'Social Chat'

Mayor Hartsfield and Brig. Gen. James B. Newman Jr., chief of U. S. Army engineers for the South Atlantic district, the man who will have considerable to say about the proposed Chattahoochee river development in which Hartsfield is interested, have held a "social chat."

Gen. Newman called at the executive offices yesterday to pay his respects to Hartsfield but termed the visit a "purely social call." In discussing Hartsfield's recent letter to him regarding a dam on the Chattahoochee river near Roswell, Gen. Newman aid his office is considering that and other important river projects in the southeast. He said he has not yet been informed how much money will be made available by congress for such developments, but added it will be the policy of his division to handle several projects simultaneously rather than devote all energies to one at the expense of others which may be equally desirable.

Hartsfield urged the Roswell dam to provide a year-around stable water supply for a city with a population of at least 750,000 persons.

St. Joseph's Infirmary Names Dr. Lowance

The medical staff of St. Joseph's infirmary elected new officers for the coming year at the staff's annual meeting in the hospital cafeteria last night.

They were: Dr. Mason Lowance, president; Dr. Julian Riley, president-elect; Dr. Sterling Claiborne, vice president, and Dr. Bernard Wolff, secretary.

Woman Is Sentenced For Slaying of Mate

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court, has sentenced Mrs. Jessie Loggins, 34-year-old cotton mill worker, to serve one to three years in prison, following her plea of guilty to the voluntary manslaughter of her husband, Sam Loggins, Dec. 22.

Witnesses told the judge at a hearing yesterday that Mrs. Loggins killed her husband with a shotgun at their home on Echo street to keep him from leaving her to go out with another woman.

ALL IN THE GAME
JACK TROY

The True Facts Atlanta is hot on a memorial stadium, and most of the citizens we see are pulling for quick completion of plans in order that a stadium could be made available by next football season.

It should not be any trick for the legislature to create a stadium authority to manage funds and operation of a Greater Atlanta stadium.

In connection with the stadium idea, we have, at hand, a communication from Theodore P. Bank, president of the Athletic Institute, Chicago. Bank served for several years as a colonel in the Army overseas. Bank writes—

"The revelation that almost half our young men were found unfit for combat duty has a peacetime significance of utmost importance.

"Lack of physical conditioning for war, means inefficiency also for the tasks of peace.

"Undue fatigue and lack of endurance may not cost a man his life in peacetime, but it may cost him success and rob him of much of life's enjoyment.

"The program to promote nation-wide participation in sports and exercise is, therefore, intended not alone for the nation's protection in case present measures fail to prevent another war, but for the efficiency and well-being of the nation in peacetime.

"Man for man, our top athletes were equal or superior physically to anything the Germans or Japs had to offer, but the average physical condition of the German and Jap armies was superior to that of the American youth. Too many of our youth have failed to supplement spectator interest with active participation in sports."

The Winner All doubts as to the might of the Kentucky basketball team have been dispelled if, indeed, any doubts existed, after the trimming the Wildcats handed the Volunteers of Tennessee prior to their Atlanta visit on Monday night.

Adolph Rupp—old Rupp and Ready himself—brought one of his finest basketball teams here. It strictly was of a pre-war vintage and obviously the class of the Southeastern Conference.

Kentucky beat a pretty good Georgia Tech team by 68-to-43 and in so doing left the impression with Tech followers that the Wildcats can wrap up the championship of the annual tournament and take it home right now.

It all goes back to the Kentucky scholarship plan. Canny Rupp has scholarships to the number of 15 and 20 and he gets the best boys.

Close observers of basketball likened the operation of the Wildcats on the floor to a polished pro team. And they are just about that. They operate plays beautifully and they pass the ball around with lightning speed.

Main thing is they always have boys who can knock the bottom out of the baskets, too. They have height and speed and finesse. They control the basketball.

Lyons Inspired Bitsy Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, four years in the Army, was on the verge of giving up tennis at 35 until he read that his old idol, Teddy Lyons, was returning to the Chicago White Sox as an active pitcher at 45.

"I figured if Lyons could do it at 45 I could still swing a racket at 35," Bitsy declared yesterday.

Grant did very well, indeed, at Tampa. Gardnar Mulloy hasn't been doing anything but play tennis while Bitsy was sweating it out in the Pacific.

"If I'd met him the day before, it would have been a better match. I was bothered with a strained muscle in my left leg," Bitsy explained.

Incidentally, Johnny Peacock, new manager of New Orleans, is an old North Carolina classmate of Grant's. Bitsy used to drop into Fenway Park, Boston, and watch him catch for the Red Sox.

Sports in Short Cub pack master, Bill Sibley, rewarded outstanding members of Cub Scout Pack 44 at the Civitan Club headquarters at Buckhead night before last. . . . Frank Troutman Jr. was there with an autographed football which Georgia used in beating Tulsa in the Oil Bowl. . . . There were as many parents as Cub Scouts present. . . . It's an enthusiastic community group and is a great thing for the boys.

Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd will address Kiwanis, of Thomaston, Tuesday, March 12. . . . It will be Dodd's first official visit to the peach center of Georgia. . . . Harrison (Piggy) Hightower, old Tech star, is one of the leaders of the Kiwanis Club.

Montgomery, Ala., cradle of the Confederacy, is having its annual Touchdown Club event on Wednesday and Thursday. . . . Many prominent coaches and writers are invited. . . . The Montgomery club then will send several representatives here for the Atlanta Touchdown Club's annual jamboree Friday and Saturday of this week.

Bobby McDermott, appearing here Thursday and Sunday with the Fort Wayne Zollners, is to our way of thinking one of the greatest basketball shots in the business. The Zollners are bona fide world champions and 10 to 1 better than the Kautskys, of Indianapolis, who played here recently.

W. C. Heinz, of the North American Newspaper Alliance, overheard a conversation between Frankie Sinkwich and a friend in New York recently. . . . The conversation ran as follows—

"'Say,' the fellow who was talking with him said, 'about a month ago I read in the papers that you were through with football forever because of that knee injury you got in the air force.'

"'Oh, that's nothing,' Sinkwich said. 'That was just a little joke.'

"'A little joke?'

"'Yeah. I was visiting George Poschner down in the hospital (Lawson General) in Atlanta and a newspaperman came in and George and I were kidding and he believed it.'"

Frankie wasn't kidding this Atlanta newspaper.

If the next coach of Boys High school isn't the same Roy Lance (Shorty) Doyal, we'll be mightly surprised.

Tide Defeats Georgia, 45-27

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Alabama's Cagers, solidly on the beam again, handed Georgia a 45-27 licking tonight and thereby avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the Bulldogs.

The 'Bama players held the opposition to one field goal in the first half—it came nine minutes before intermission—and at halftime the Crimsons were in front 21-4.

Georgia's next goal was not tallied until Alabama held a 31-10 margin and was in a position to call out its substitutes. The victory was the third Southeastern Conference triumph for Alabama in six starts.

Bell of Alabam and Fabian of Georgia tied for high scoring honors with 10 points apiece.

Smithies, Purples To Battle

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Tech High and Boys High, who have been trying to bat one another's ears down for 35 years in one of the south's great rivalries, will battle one another for the first time in 1946 when the schools' hardwood artists take to Henry Grady courts tonight at 7:30 o'clock after the B teams of the same institutions inaugurate proceedings an hour earlier.

A capacity crowd of some 1,500, when rafter seats are included, is expected to be on hand for the cage melee which will find O. V. Bruner's Village Smithies, currently on top of the Big Six League and GIAA standings, seeking their first win over the Purple and White clads in four years.

Coach R. L. (Shorty) Doyal's Purple Hurricane, city champions for five consecutive years, find their star supposedly in the descendancy after losing Jack Griffin, Ed Swanson and Ewell Pope, three starters, via the diploma route last week, but the Boys High followers have taken heart again following the fight their quintet gave Lanier in Macon before bowing, 34-31, last week. The Poets, defending GIAA champions, are regarded as the best five in the state at the moment.

The Blacksmith's, undefeated in Georgia, have racked up three GIAA foes and amassed 159 points to 80 for the opposition, but have met only one tough state foe, Jordan, of Columbus. The Purples have suffered three defeats while winning one fray, but two of their losses were to Lanier and Jordan, two of the top drawer clubs.

North Fulton's A and B teams will play the GMA Cadets in a twin bill at GMA starting at 3:30 p. m., and the Campbell boys and girls will invade the Russell High court for a couple of settos at 7:30 p. m. in other tilts slated today.

North Fulton Beats Fulton

North Fulton won a basketball double-header over Fulton High—the boys by 25-18 and the girls 24-18—Tuesday afternoon on the winners' court.

Although Fulton boys led, 8-4, at the start of the second quarter, the North Fulton Bulldogs quickly caught up and went into a lead that was never seriously threatened thereafter. George Dunbar led the Bulldogs' attack with 11 points, sharing honors with two teammates, Fred Ewing and John O'Neil, who played good defensive ball throughout. Fred Anderson paced the losers' attack with 12 points.

Jo Lane Cheves went into a tie with Marjean Patterson, of Fulton, for the NGIC girls' individual scoring lead by adding 13 points to her total of 69 in the preliminary, which saw North Fulton girls beat Fulton, 24-18.

BASKETBALL PAYS KENTUCKY

Rupp Says Wildcats To Play Temple Again

By THAD HOLT

Talk to Adolph Rupp for 30 minutes or 30 hours and the subject is the same—basketball. The famous University of Kentucky coach has a one-track mind. He won't discuss the weather. Race horses inspire the man from the Blue Grass country to give a bored grunt. Politics are out of his line. But basketball—it's his baby and he'll talk about it hours after he's tucked his ball players in their cribs.

"We didn't play up to our best against Tech tonight," he tried to explain to a reporter who had been popeyed at the sight of the lightning-like Wildcats streaking by and through the Tech Yellow Jackets. "Wish you could see us when we're having a good night. We were much better against Tennessee."

"What was the trouble against Temple?" the reporter asked devilishly. "Didn't they hand you your only defeat?"

"Yep, they beat us all right," he said. "It was a case of too much Madison Square Garden. We should have come on home after playing in the Garden. But here's a scoop for you: We haven't announced it yet because we don't want to be bothered by ticket hounds, but we play Temple later in the season in Louisville. And you know what—we're gonna kick the daylights out of 'em."

Rupp disclosed that Kentucky cleared $29,000 out of basketball last year and would draw considerably better this season. "We pack 'em in everywhere," he said.

"I figure I'm the smartest man in basketball," he said half aloud, "but I was outsmarted once or twice this season. I told Michigan State we would take all of our gate and they could have theirs. Our gym seats only 3,700 and when we got to Michigan State they had a crowd of 8,200. However, we're starting construction on a field house soon that will cost a million and three-quarter dollars and will seat 10,000 for basketball. Then we'll swap gates with any of 'em and feel no pain."

"Wish I could stay over and watch Fort Wayne play here," he said. "Don't forget to send me the clippings from their games in Atlanta. You know they are pretty good, too."

Cieslak Is Playing In Puerto Rico Loop

Ted Cieslak, the Southern League's most valuable player last season, is playing ball with San Juan in Puerto Rico and saving his money.

Cieslak, who spent most of the winter here, left early in January to play for San Juan.

The popular ex-Cracker, who reports for spring training with the Roston Braves this season, is saving his money, but he doesn't trust the banks in Puerto Rico. "Corn" White, who with Lew Sewell, operates the Anchorage, revealed.

"Ted left his bankbook with me and sends his savings back here for deposit," White said.

HILL AND LLOYD ON GAME, FISH BODY

Gov. Ellis Arnall yesterday reappointed Hugh Hill, former chairman, of Macon, and Clabus Lloyd, of Gainesville, to the state game and fish commission.

Gov. Arnall thus ended a controversy that has been raging for some time over whether or not the two widely respected Georgians would be reappointed to posts in which they have served state and outdoorsmen well.

All other commission members were appointed for longer terms.

Russell Upsets Druid Hills, 32-29

Russell High staged one of those last-minute rallies that is becoming the fashion in NGIC play this season to upset the strong Druid Hills five 32-29 Tuesday afternoon on the Wildcat's court. The Druid Hills girls salvaged some honor and glory by trimming the Russell girls, 19-12, in the preliminary game. Although Russell girls are still looking for their first NGIC victory, they are improving with each game.

Druid Hills boys managed to get ahead, 29-28, with one minute to go after an uphill battle from the start, but lost the lead 25 seconds later when George Sconyers slipped one through the hoop. A few seconds later Jack Ramage sank a game-winning clincher field goal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Alex Carrasquel, pitcher, and Fred Vaughn, infielder, were sold tonight by the Washington Senators to the Chicago White Sox for the American League waiver price.

J. P. Miller To Coach Pensacola

J. P. Miller, of Athens, who captained the 1945 Georgia football team, has been appointed line coach at Pensacola, Fla., High school, The Constitution learned yesterday.

Miller, who saw service in France, returned to Georgia just before the opening of the '45 season and was one of the stars of the team that defeated Tulsa, 20 to 6, in the Oil Bowl on Jan. 1.

Miller was a substitute guard on the Georgia team that defeated UCLA in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 1, 1943, filling in for Walter Ruark, an all-conference performer who was killed during the fighting in France.

At Pensacola, Miller will be assistant to Ernie Priest, a former University of Florida grid star.

Although weighing only 180 pounds, Miller was one of the best guards in the Southeastern Conference last season. He was especially good on offense, being a devastating blocker.

Miller, who is married, will take over the Pensacola post as soon as he graduates from Georgia in June.

Georgia Belt Causes Fuss

The wrestling belt put up by Promoter Paul Jones for the championship of Georgia is creating a furore in Atlanta mat circles.

John Mauldin now has the belt, although he did not win it in a tournament, as was intended by Jones. So the promoter has notified Mauldin that to keep the belt he must beat two contenders to be named by Jones, who promptly designated Jack Kelley as the first and scheduled the match, for 20 minutes for a fall, on Saturday night's wrestling program at the City Auditorium.

Other Georgia grapplers believe they are entitled to a shot at the state crown and the holder of the belt, whether he is Mauldin or someone else after Saturday, is certain to be kept busy.

Saturday night's main event brings together Herb Welch, the world's junior heavyweight champion, and a fiery challenger, Jack LaRue, of Canada. Welch beat Vic Emanuel last week, while LaRue and Al Massey battled to a furious draw.

Massey and Laverne Baxter will team up against Dick Lever and Emanuel in a team match in the semi-final. Four women wrestlers will be seen in 20-minute matches. Nell Stewart faces Peggy Vaughn and June Byers takes on Juanita Coffman.

Reeder Trips ASF, 56 to 55

Reeder - McGaughey sprang a sharp upset last night by handing the ASF Officers their first defeat in league competition, winning a desperately fought, 56-55 contest on the weekly Tuesday night program.

Despite the usual brilliant efforts of Lt. Ralph Hamilton, who caged 26 points, the speedy redshirts had a better rounded attack, with Walter Haymans and Charlie Wood, former Tech athletes, bagging 14 and 12 points, respectively, and Shelby Kinney and Damico bagging 11 and 10.

Reeder and Fort Mac are now the only undefeated teams in the Sports Arena League.

In other games, Fort McPherson and Sports Arena won top-heavy decisions, Fort Mac beating Straight 8's, 62-33, and Lawson General losing to Sports Arena, 64-36. Kaley had 20 points for Fort Mac while Crain got 17 for Lawson and Rainey had 16 for Sports Arena, with Bobby Moore getting 13 to add to the Arena's total.

Three Games Tonight In Suburban Loop

Three games will be played in the Suburban Basketball League tonight, beginning at 7 o'clock. Hapeville meets the Medics in the first game, College Park faces Fairburn in the second and Jonesboro takes on Fayetteville in the third.

Unbeaten Snipers 2d Foe of Zollners Here

Full assurance that Fort Wayne's world's professional basketball champions would meet not one but two strong opponents in Atlanta on Thursday night and Sunday afternoon was forthcoming yesterday with the announcement that Bobby McDermott and Company would take on the undefeated Fort Benning Snipers at the Arena Sunday afternoon.

Thursday night's opponent for the kings of the court will be made up from three strong clubs—the Parris Island Marines, ASF Officers and Sports Arena. The Marines and Officers, who are led by Ralph Hamilton, play the semi-final on the Thursday show. The first game will pit College Park against Canton High at 7 o'clock.

The Snipers have won 13 games in as many starts against strong opposition. They are led by Jim Homer, the former University of Alabama giant. The Snipers are rugged and reckless. They exude confidence. They believe that what Fort Bragg did to a pro club here (the Indianapolis Kautskys) they can do to the Zollners. At least Fort Bragg has raised the stock of these fine service teams. Fans are now convinced that Uncle Sam's lads are no pushovers in any league.

Tomorrow night basketball followers will see the greatest array of basketball players ever assembled under one banner. Besides McDermott, the Zollners have, among others, John Pelkington, Bud Jeanette, Bob Kinney, Bob Synott, Jerry Bush and Ed Sadowski, the 254-pounder who moves like a cat.

Tickets for both the Thursday and Sunday shows are on sale at Reeder-McGaughey Sporting Goods and Adam Hat Stores.

ZOLLNER STAR — Playing on his fourth professional basketall team, Bud Jeanette is in his second year with the Champion Fort Wayne Zollners, who appear at Sports Arena Thursday night and Sunday afternoon. Jeanette has made the all-pro five at the world's tournament in Chicago three times during the past five years.

Decatur Licks West Fulton

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE

The NGIC league-leading Decatur Bulldogs continued their winning ways Tuesday afternoon by downing the scrappy but still winless West Fulton Owls, 39-31, on the Bulldogs' court.

Decatur substituted freely but had to rely on Red Patton's 15 points to sew up the affair. Virgil Bartlett played a fine floor game for the losers.

Decatur girls won their end of the triple card over Conyers, 35-27. Conyers outscored Decatur girls, 18-14, during last half after having played mediocre ball the first two stanzas.

The Decatur "B" team, by virtue of Frank Miller's 12 points, defeated West Fulton's "B" squad, 20-12, after having held the Owls scoreless during the first half.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Stocks rallied selectively today, after four successive market declines, with steels, liquors, utilities and assorted industrials pacing the comeback.

Trends improved after a slightly mixed opening. While dealings, on an all-cash basis for the second day, were quiet throughout, gains of fractions to 2 or more points—there were a few much wider swings—predominated near the close. Some rails were hesitant and scattered losers persisted.

U. S. Steel rose 3-4, Bethlehem 1 7-8, Republic 1 1-2, Youngstown Sheet 1⅛ and Lukens Steel 2 following Washington reports steel makers would be granted a price boost at the end of the month regardless of wage adjustments.

Belief that the market had enjoyed a good technical correction, revival of inflation psychology and hopes for nearby settlement of widespread labor disputes served to inspire bidding. There still were many skeptics, however, and these continued to hold aloof.

Modest improvement returned to the bond market today following the rather drastic decline on Monday, the first day of business after the rapid spread of strikes over the weekend. Gains were in the majority at the start of the final hours and ranged from small fractions to more than a point.

Among forward leaners in the curb were Brown-Forman Distillers, up 3; Cities Service, E. W. Bliss, Electric Bond & Share, Glen Alden Coal, Humble Oil and American Republics. Turnover here was 600,000 shares versus 780,000 yesterday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The cotton futures market turned firm following early easiness today on the resumption of commission house buying and short covering, which met only scale-up offering. Traders saw inflationary implications in the news that a scale price rise is imminent and were influenced by the recommendation by Sen. Thomas that ceiling prices on farm products be raised. Early selling stemmed from profit-taking and hedging believed to be partly against Commodity Credit Corporation releases.

Trust Firm Plans Building Changes

The Trust Company of Georgia has filed application for a building permit for alterations amounting to $100,000 of the fourth and fifth floors of the present building.

The alterations, consisting of a new air conditioning system, new walls and ceilings, new elevator and painting, will serve to remodel that part of the building which is between the Ivan-Allen-Marshall Company and the original Trust Company of Georgia building at the corner of Pryor street and Edgewood avenue.

Robert Strickland, president of the Trust Company, said that the application had been filed by the Barge-Thompson Company.

Farm Chief Leaves for Cotton Parley

H. L. Wingate, of Macon, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation, left here last night for Memphis, Tenn., where he will attend the National Cotton Council and join with about 500 other southern farm leaders in protesting the proposed 24.09 cents a pound ceiling on cotton.

"We fought to save OPA last year," Wingate said in an interview yesterday, "but unless the ceiling idea is abandoned, we will abolish the office—and we have the strength to do it, too."

Wingate was in Washington last week for a meeting of the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau, of which he is a member. Chester Bowles, OPA head, appeared before the board to explain the reason for the cotton ceiling.

BOWLES GIVES EXCUSE

"But what he gave us was an excuse—not a reason," Wingate said emphatically. "His only explanation was that his office must give a notice of intention to impose a ceiling 15 days before planting season, if at all.

"But why did you think you might have to put a ceiling on cotton?" was Wingate's question to Bowles. "OPA has stated that where there is a surplus, there will be no ceilings since the surplus in itself will keep the price in line. Yet there are 4,000,000 bales of cotton in this country beyond a normal surplus."

There are three good reasons, Wingate believes, why there should be no ceiling on cotton:

"First, this is the first year in several years that farmers have received a parity price for their cotton.

"Second, there is a surplus of 4,000,000 bales of cotton and thus no need for a ceiling.

CEILING IMPOSSIBLE

"Third, it would be humanly impossible to control a ceiling on cotton since there are more than 600 staples and types of cotton."

Wingate conferred here Monday with Porter Taylor, of Washington, D. C., director of the fruits and vegetables division of the American Farm Bureau regarding the establishment of a fruits and vegetables committee in Georgia which would operate under the Marketing Agreement Act.

Such a committee would place the marketing of all fruits and vegetables under the terms of the national act, if approved by the farmers, and would mean the regulation of grade, size and maturity standards, Wingate explained.

The peach growers of Georgia already operate under the Marketing Agreement Act, Wingate said, when prices are below parity. He emphasized that the program would be flexible so that when crops were small and poor, standards would not be so strict.

For Investors!

A SOURCE BOOK OF INVESTMENT INFORMATION

If you are an investor, you'll be interested in our booklet "A Primer For Investors" which provides a concise explanation of the nature of securities and the mechanics of the financial business.

It discusses such subjects as the various types of stocks and bonds, how to calculate yields and the significance of price-earnings ratios. In addition, it explains the advisability of a diversified portfolio and comments on symbols and prices to be found in the daily quotation tables of transactions on the New York Stock Exchange.

Here, too, will be found a discussion of estates and trusts, the making of a will, choosing a beneficiary and the naming of an executor.

YOUNGEST MAYOR CLAIMS INCREASE; CHATSWORTH'S CITY CLERK ONLY 17

Two other Georgia cities are now contesting the claim of Douglasville, Ga., that in Harold T. Mozley Sr., 28, it has the youngest mayor in the United States.

The two contestants are Lavonia, in Franklin county, and Chatsworth, in Murray county, both of which claim the edge on Douglasville.

The mayor of Lavonia is Ernest Vandiver Jr., 27 years old, thus, as Lavonia claims, "a full four months younger than Mayor Mozley." He was elected last December and took office last January 1.

The mayor of Chatsworth is Billie Groves, who is 24 years old. Groves, a veteran of World War II, defeated two older men in his race for mayor.

In addition, Chatsworth claims another record: Miss Polly Robinson, city clerk, is only 17 years old "but was highly recommended for the office."

Gouin Is Coalition Choice For President of France

PARIS, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Socialist Felix Gouin, 60-year-old lawyer, emerged Tuesday as Gen. De Gaulle's probable successor as interim president of Frence at the head of a Communist-Socialist-Popular Republican movement (MRP) coalition government.

His election by the constituent assembly Wednesday was regarded as almost certain. He had the support of the Communists, who proposed him as a candidate and of his own party.

The MRP late Tuesday night accepted the general terms of the coalition.

Solution of the government crisis came after the Communists withdrew their candidate, Maurice Thorez, and proposed Gouin as an individual who had been supported unanimously by all parties when put at the head of the assembly.

Gouin first had refused to be a candidate. the Socialists then proposed their minister of state, Vincent Auriol.

When the Communists turned thumbs down on Auriol and the Socialist leader, Leon Blum said ill health forced him to refuse to be a candidate, Gouin made his decision to accept.

Assembly circles foresaw Gouin's election and formation of the new cabinet—with few changes—by nightfall.

Opposition to the present draft of the proposed new constitution for France, which calls for an all-powerful unicameral legislative system, and a figurehead French president, was one of the causes of De Gaulle's resignation.

50 Die, 100 Hurt In Iran Fighting

TEHRAN, Iran, Jan. 22.—(AP)—News dispatches Tuesday said 50 persons were killed and 100 wounded in a conflict between "revolutionaries" and Zulfag Hari tribesmen near Yangikand, in Khamsi Province of Russian-occupied northern Iran.

The newspaper Ettelaat said the "revolutionaries first suffered heavy casualties but after receiving reinforcements, including armored cars and machine guns, they drove the Zulfag Haris into their villages, which they sacked."

The tribesmen were said by the newspaper to be loyal to the Tehran government. The newspaper described the "revolutionaries" as insurgent partisans.

COBURN OUR GUEST

Georgia-Born Actor Comes For Premiere

By PAUL JONES.

Charles Coburn, beloved character actor of the movies, arrives at 8:50 a. m. today at Brookwood station to take part in a round of festivities accompanying the premiere of his latest screen comedy, "Col. Effingham's Raid," at the Paramount theater tomorrow night.

Coburn is no stranger to Atlanta and Georgia and his visit here today and tomorrow should serve to recall many memories in the mind of the veteran Broadway and Hollywood performer.

It was in Atlanta that Coburn first became "stage struck." According to a statement attributed to him several months ago, Coburn became fascinated with show business when he saw a sword swallower "down" a sword in a mystifying display at a medicine show here many, many years ago.

COBURN'S BEGINNINGS

Coburn, the story goes, was so intrigued by the sword swallower's magic that he soon applied for a job as usher in a theater in Savannah. One thing led to another, and before he had reached his 30s Coburn was a matinee idol of the legitimate theater. Many old-timers in Atlanta recall his appearances on the stage of the Forsyth theater.

Georgia claims Coburn as one of its most famous sons, since the Academy Award-winning star spent much of his boyhood here. Several members of his family reside in Georgia now.

After his arrival, Coburn will proceed to the Biltmore hotel, where he will be with his family.

AUTHOR COMING TOO

Arriving this morning also is Berry Fleming, author of "Col. Effingham's Raid," who will be one of the featured principals in the Paramount premiere.

Together, Coburn and Fleming will be honored by a reception at the Atlanta Variety Club from 5:30 to 7 p. m. today and at a dinner tomorrow at 12:30 at the Capital City Club, which will be attended by 100 guests including Mayor Hartsfield and Gov. Arnall. William K. Jenkins, president of Georgia Theaters, will be host at this dinner.

Coburn and Fleming will appear on the stage of the Paramount at 3 p. m. and 9 p. m. Thursday.

Maj. Pendleton Named President ByExchangeClub

Maj. R. S. Pendleton, who has just retired from the United States Marine Corps, became the new president of the Exchange Club of Atlanta at an installation ceremony held at the Robert Fulton hotel.

Leon G. Dunn is the new vice president and J. Frank Bell, the secretary-treasurer. New members of the board of control are: Alan B. Ford, Claude Grizzard and Maj. George C. Strandberg, of the Salvation Army. The ceremonies took place yesterday.

A feature speaker for the occasion was Cedric Foster, radio commentator, who said that only by maintaining the essential unity of its people could America hope to survive in the new world of atomic bombs.

"If we would survive," he said, "we must by our own voluntary efforts accomplish what the totalitarian countries do by compulsion."

Foster, who is in Atlanta to address the Ahepa convention, told of an hour-long interview with Gen. MacArthur on the night of last July 4 in Manila. In that interview, reported Foster, Gen. MacArthur saw that if there was another world war the white race would destroy itself and thus leave the remnants of the world to the brown, yellow and black races.

In order to obtain unity in this country, and thereby maintain the capitalistic system, Foster advocated that leaders of contending factors adhere to the spirit of compromise in order to avoid civil strife.

"Unless we do that," he continued, "we can't hope to survive in the postwar world."

Ben Huiet, state commissioner of labor, who is a candidate for congress to succeed Robert Ramspeck, was also a speaker.

Texans To Hear Arnall

DENTON, Texas, Jan. 22. —(AP)—Gov. Arnall of Georgia will address the student body of North Texas State College here Feb. 15 under sponsorship of Gamma Iota Chi, fraternity for ex-servicemen.

TVA Makes First Repayment to U. S.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Tennessee Valley Authority has made its first actual cash repayment to the Federal Treasury to retire congressional appropriations for electric power developments.

In its annual report to congress TVA said that $12,600,000 of revenues for the year ending June 30, 1945, was returned to the Treasury.

Until the TVA law was so amended last year, there was no provision for repayment and surplus funds were used in lieu of appropriations.

Since 1933 congress has given TVA about $700,000,000, of which 40 per cent, or $280,000,000, has been allocated to electric power development. The balance was for flood control and navigation costs.

Net cash earning from power since TVA started operations is approximately $100,000,000, after all operating expenses including taxes, payments in lieu of taxes and depreciation have been deducted.

UNO Confident On Problems

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—United Nations leaders declared optimistically Tuesday night that the newly born peace agency could settle amicably the Russian protest against British policy in Greece and Java.

They discounted talk that the surprise move by Soviet Russia and the Ukraine might create a crisis at the very outset of the United Nations Organization.

Some members of the council predicted that commissions probably would be appointed to carry out "on-the-spot" investigations in Iran, Greece and Indonesia if no means of immediate friendly settlement appeared.

Home Economics Teacher Joins GSCW Faculty

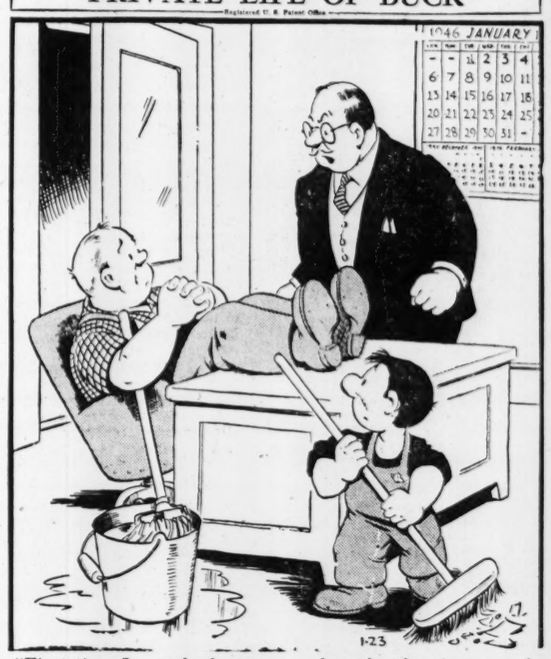

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Jan. 22. Miss Gladys Gilbert, home economics teacher at Metter, has come to Milledgeville to join the faculty of the Georgia State College for Women in the division of home economics.

Miss Gilbert was formerly in Milledgeville as home economics supervisor at the Midway school at Hardwick. She was succeeded at Metter by Miss Myrtice McDonold, of Moultrie, a GSCW home economics student teacher who had done her apprentice teaching at the home economics training center there.

FARMERS CAN BID ON ARMY MULES

Farmers will be eligible to buy surplus Army mules at a War Assets Corporation sale scheduled for Friday at the Ragsdale-Lawhon Commission Company's National Stockyards. Previous announcements confined the sale to certified veterans and to dealers.

More than 800 mules will be auctioned at the sale, which will start at 10 a. m. Mules slated for sale may be inspected today and tomorrow. The mules were brought to the Atlanta establishment from Oklahoma.

GM Presents Views on Strike At Dinner Here

General Motors Corporation presented its side of the United Automobile Workers of America, CIO-GM strike at a dinner given by the company for approximately 400 civic, industrial, religious and agricultural leaders of Atlanta and nearby communities last night at the Ansley hotel. Also in attendance were General Motors and competitive dealers, and representatives of subsidiary General Motors companies.

Robert W. Embrick, regional manager for the corporation, with headquarters in Atlanta, presented the company's view of the strike.

Calling General Motors the "test" corporation for a UAW-CIO bid for power in the automotive industry, Embrick reviewed the entire strike and heavily criticized the union's attempt to open the company's books. Concerning the corporation's withdrawal from conferences with President Truman's fact-finding board, Embrick declared:

"The President instructed the fact-finding board:

"'It is essential to a fulfillment of its duty that the board have the authority, whenever it deems it necessary, to examine the books of the employer.

"'Ability to pay is always one of the facts relevant to the issue of an increase in wages.'"

These points, Embrick said, were in direct contrast to the beliefs of the corporation.

Short Says Army Tried To Make Him 'Scapegoat'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short Tuesday accused the War Department of withholding vital information from him and then trying to make him the "scapegoat" for the Pearl Harbor disaster.

In a bristling statement read before the joint congressional committee investigating the Dec. 7, 1941, attack, the former Hawaiian Army commander said:

1. He would have foreseen the attack and taken steps to meet it had the War Department only transmitted to him its "abundance of information."

2. The top Army command sought to "pass the buck" to him for "their failure to anticipate the surprise raid."

3. He believed the high command fully realized from his report of action taken after a Nov. 27, 1941, war warning that his command was alerted only against sabotage.

Ike Hears Irate Mothers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower walked into a verbal ambush of irate war mothers Tuesday, heard at length their complaints against demobilization, and promised them his autograph.

From half a dozen cities the mothers, about 20 of them representing organizations devoted to obtaining the release of soldier-fathers, gathered in a hallway in the house office building. They had heard that the Army chief of staff was due to explain demobilization to the House Military Committee.

Unwarned and unguarded, Eisenhower walked toward the committee room. Before he could dig in, he was backed into a corner of the office of Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, and faced a withering barrage of questions. They all dealt with the theme: "When do we get our husbands back?"

MRS. JOHN D. POWER

Miss Powell Wed To John D. Power

Miss Alice Elizabeth Powell, lovely young daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. N. O. L. Powell, became the bride of John Denmon Power, of Brookhaven, at a recent late afternoon ceremony solemnized at the Mt. Zion Methodist church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Power, of Brookhaven.

The bride's father, pastor of Mt. Zion church, read the marriage service, and a musical program was presented during the assembling of the guests by Mrs. Raymond E. Musser, soloist, and Miss Mary Louise Musser, pianist.

Hugh Ridson was best man for his cousin and the ushers included the groom's brothers, Alton H. Power Jr. and Cecil Power.

Miss Powell was given in marriage by her brother, O. L. Powell, and her sister, Miss Lo ise Powell, was her maid of honor. The latter wore a gown of blue wool crepe with brown accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The bride chose for the ceremony a modish suit of ice blue wool, and carried a white satin-covered prayer book showered with white orchids.

Following the marriage, Rev. and Mrs. Powell entertained at an informal reception. Misses Luan McWhorter and Emily Arnold kept the guest book.

'Out of This World' Dance Planned

A script dance entitled, "Out of This World," has been planned for Saturday evening by members of the Delta Alpha Delta sorority of the Georgia Evening College.

The affair, to be held at the school, will feature an unusual decorative theme. Half the ballroom will be arranged as heaven and the other half as Hades, with a massive pair of pearly gates dividing the room. Guests will attend dressed as devils and angels, and prizes for the cake walk to be enjoyed during the evening will be individual angel food and devil's food cakes.

Official hostesses will be the sorority officers, who include Miss Ruth Gillespie, president; Miss Helen Wright, vice president; Miss Peggy Burpett, secretary; Miss Hilda Harris, treasurer; Miss Daisy Smith, sergeant-at-arms! Miss Betty Monday, pledge captain, and Miss Bee Jay Griffith, scribe.

Sorority Mothers Club

The Alpha Chi Omega Mothers' Club will meet at the home of Mrs. M. J. Swafford, 1052 Rosedale drive, N. E., today at 10:30 o'clock. Following the meeting, Mrs. Swafford, with Mrs. F. A. Buchanan as cohostess, will give a luncheon honoring the new members.

East Lake Garden Club

The East Lake Garden Club will meet at the home of Mrs. William Sockwell, 1307 Oakdale road, N. E., today at 10:30 o'clock. Cohostess will be Mrs. Charles H. Van Ormen and Mrs. T. H. Kidd. Kidd.

Mrs. P. Thornton Marye, a member of the Planters, will talk on "The Culture and History of Camellias."

Wives' Club Party

United States Public Health Service Wives' Club will hold a luncheon-bridge on Jan. 25, at 12:45 o'clock at Davison-Paxon's Lee Room. Hostesses will be Mrs. Robert Usinger, Mrs. John Wiley and Mrs. James G. Terrill. For reservation call CR. 1725.

Memorial for Lt. Cmdr. Land Set for His Birthday Thursday

Mrs. Alexander H. McLanahan and her son, Alex King McLanahan, of New York, have arrived in the city to spend two weeks at the Biltmore hotel, and to attend a memorial service on Thursday for Mrs. McLanahan's brother, Lt. Cmdr. Fort Elmo Land, U. S. Navy.

The service will be held at 5 o'clock at St. Mark Methodist church, with the pastor, Dr. Lester Rumble, officiating, and the church quartet presenting the music. The date marks Cmdr. Land's birthday. His friends and those of his family are invited to attend the service.

Cmdr. Land, who was the son of Mrs. Fort Land, of Atlanta, lost his life in late November while piloting his plane, a Hellcat fighter, off the coast of San Diego, Cal. He was stationed at the time at the Naval Air Station, San Diego. Just one month previous, he had received his promotion to lieutenant commander and had been named executive officer of a fighter squadron, with which he was on a routine flight on the fatal date.

Since that time tribute has been paid him by friends in every walk of life throughout the country, from the old servants in the family home in Macon to the secretary of the Navy, James Forrestal, who wrote his mother last week.

Annual 'Sweetheart Ball' Planned by Sigma Chis

The Pompeian room of the Biltmore hotel will form the setting Friday evening for the annual Emory Sigma Chi fraternity's "Sweetheart Ball." This gala event will be a highlight on the college social calendar. The banquet is set for 7:15 and the dance will begin at 9 o'clock.

During the evening, the lovely candidates for the coveted title of "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" will dance to the sweetheart song, and the president of the fraternity, Drew Fuller, will break on the lucky winner who will be presented with a flower cross and a silver cup. The candidates from the Phi Pi sorority are Misses Carolyn Simpson and Virginia Davis. The Pi Pi candidates are Misses Bess Lundeen and Nancy Jagels; from the Sigma Delta sorority, Misses Corinne Carpenter and Dot Dunn; the O. B. X. candidates, Misses Joanne Lang and Ann Bryan, and the Sunev candidates, Misses Pat Coleman and Jerry Dixon.

Miss Florence Akers, who was chosen as the sweetheart last year, will share honors at the dance. The chaperons will include Mrs. W. C. Weldon, the fraternity house mother, and James Rankin, national officer in the Sigma Chi fraternity.

SALLY FORTH Says:

'Gone With the Wind' Read Nightly by Jap Gen. Homma

Last Sunday's edition of the New York Times carried a wireless dispatch from Manila, giving detailed information concerning the trial, now in progress there, of Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma, Japanese conqueror of Bataan and Corregidor. It seems that the general's wife, Mrs. Fujiko Homma, to whom he has been married 20 years, has broken Japanese traditions by flying from Tokyo to Manila to testify in her husband's behalf. She still further departed from tradition by holding a formal press conference for newspaper representatives in Manila, shortly after her arrival there.

Mrs. Homma paid high tribute to her husband, of course, and during her testimony at the trial she told the jury that Gen. Homma had a large collection of English plays, favoring those by John Galsworthy and George Bernard Shaw, and that his favorite novel in English is "GONE WITH THE WIND." Mrs. Homma's remark recalled an Army intelligence report, hitherto unrevealed, that "in the Philippines Gen. Homma read a chapter of 'Gone With the Wind' nightly before retiring, and wrote to army headquarters in Tokyo requesting that, when the Japs landed in California, they rush the motion picture, based on Margaret Mitchell's book, to Manila so he could see it."

OFF TO CAMELBACK INN

Virginia and Cason Callaway, of LaGrange and Blue Springs, and their brother and sister, Fuller and Alice Callaway, of LaGrange, accompanied by the latter couple's daughter, Ida, are making ready to depart on Feb. 8 for a glorious trip out west. These prominent Georgians will spend a month at the picturesque Camelback Inn, near Phoenix, Ariz., where they can ride horseback to their hearts' content.

Virginia spent several days here this week shopping for riding boots and various sporting togs, assisted by her sister, Catherine (Mrs. Charles) Rawson. When Virginia arrived, her car was filled to overflowing with graceful branches of glossy magnolia leaves, fresh from the Callaway farms at Blue Springs. Catherine will use them in decorating the stage at the Woman's Club for the Hugh Hodgson concert on Jan. 27, which is sponsored by the Mothers' Club of the Lovett school.

CHI PHI BARN DANCE

Live animals and hay stacks will add color to the Chi Phi house at Tech Saturday evening when the fraternity members entertain at a barn dance. The fraternity members will wear blue jeans and plaid shirts, not to mention their corncob pipes. The girls will dress as farmerettes, wearing plaid gingham and bonnets, with others in blue jeans. Square dances and Virginia reels will be enjoyed along with the inevitable jitterburg and waltzes.

The officers of the fraternity include Billy Huger, president; Tommy Curtain, vice president; Bobby Davis, treasurer, and Bill Busbin, secretary.

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

A recent edition of the Times-Herald, published in Washington, D. C., carried in the society section pictures of charming people attending the reception given President and Mrs. Truman and Margaret Truman by the American Woman's Newspaper Club in the Mayflower hotel ballroom.

Golden-haired Betty Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tyson, of New York and Newport, who made her debut at a party given in Newport, was flanked by Lt. Cmdr. Jack Meikle, RCNVR, and Perry Wheeler, of Cordele, Atlanta and Washington. Ambassador and Mrs. Patrick Hurley were pictured as officialdom's handsomest couple. Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the secretary of war, listened attentively to the conversation of Gen. Allen W. Guillion at the gala event. Genevieve Reynolds, president of the club, occupied an important position in the group composed of President and Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, who wore a modish evening gown, white gloves, and her hair arranged in a long bob.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Alice Planned Party For Boys AND Girls

Why did you tell Alice you'd go to her party if you didn't intend to go? Oh, you turned up at the appointed place and hour. You greeted the girls in their best dresses and expectant faces. But you spotted a couple of cronies over against the far wall . . . and you made a beeline to join them. You'd been saving up a few juicy tidbits to pass on. Gosh, it was good to see them. Why, you hadn't seen them since that very afternoon. With a sigh that you'd been able to escape the females, you settled down with the boys on their side of the room.

THEN THE FUN BEGAN

The girls were content for a little to wage girl chat. They kept their heads together . . . and every now and then you hear a high giggle and a mild screech from their side. But there was a mighty wall of Jericho through the middle of the room.

Elizabeth Woodward

Finally, Alice began to get a bit jittery. She'd planned a party. She'd wracked her brains to think up things to do to amuse all of you. She began to round up the girls . . . and they began to wriggle in their chairs and look over at you boys. Of course, you didn't pay any attention . . . they just weren't there, as far as you were concerned.

Then Alice got up her courage and approached your huddle. With a pleading smile she begged you boys to come to the party. Could your weighty male matters wait? She had a wonderful new game she'd like to spring on the crowd . . . and the girls were ready. "Wait a minute, Alice," was all she got for her pains. You gentlemen couldn't be bothered. So Alice shrugged her shoulders, and went back to pacify the ladies. She thought better of her game . . . and enlisted a couple of girls to roll up the rugs and sort out the records. Then she bravely suggested that you pick your partners. She even turned on the music to tantalize you . . . but did you budge? No, sirree. So the girls started dancing with each other . . . trying valiantly not to care whether you danced with them or not.

ALMOST TIME TO GO HOME

In desperation, Alice decided the only way to get you lads to your feet was to suggest refeshments. She whispered "food." That did it. Whatever you were saying didn't really matter any more.

Well, you should have stayed home! A party's a place where you mix and mingle. You go to be entertained and entertaining. Your hostess tries hard to see that you have a good time. But if you refuse to be amused . . . you won't be invited to bust up a party!

Veterans' Postwar Notebook

By MAJ. THOMAS M. NIAL

Just to show a sample of the cost of the GI Bill readjustment allowance, about 338,000 World War II vets draw around eight million dollars in folding money during ONE WEEK.

That sounds like a lot of dough to me; but it must be just a sneering amount, because employment officials don't seem to be tearing out their hair about it. Rather, they point out that many ex-servicemen are in a shopping-around period—looking for the kind of job they're fitted for. They don't want any old job that's offered.

Such an explanation doesn't sound too genuine to me, but maybe it's so. There's one encouraging sign in the figures. It isn't the same veterans who keep drawing readjustment allowances week after week. The turnover is large—probably meaning that most of our crowd seem to get squared away in a reasonable time.

Question from W. T. G., Washington: "How long can I draw the readjustment allowance of $20 a week payable to unemployed veterans?"

The maximum number of weeks any vet can draw the allowance (sometimes called unemployment pay) is 52. You can get eight weeks of the allowance for each of the first three months you served in the armed forces. Therefore, your first three months of service would give you the right to draw a total of 24 weeks of the allowance. Then you get an additional four weeks of the allowance for each of the next seven months you had in service. That's a total of 52 weeks.

Question from K. F. G., Philadelphia: "I get a disability discharge from the Army after having served just 87 days. Will I be eligible for the readjustment allowance?"

If your disability was service-connected (either incurred in, or aggravated by your service), you're eligible to apply for the allowance. The only eligibility requirements are a discharge given under conditions other than dishonorable, and at least 90 days' service, part of which came after Sept. 16, 1940. In case of a discharge for disability incurred in service (line of duty), such as you possibly received, the 90 days' service is not required.

Query from R. E., New Orleans: "How long after the end of the war can a veteran take advantage of the readjustment allowances?"

You can apply for the allowance up to two years after discharge, or two years after the official end of the war, whichever is later. But no allowance is payable for any week beyond five years after the official end of the war.

Question from R. L. W., Syracuse: "I was discharged from the Army with a 40 per cent disability, and I am getting my pension every month. Does that mean I am ineligible for the readjustment allowance?"

The answer is—"No." Providing you don't have the wrong kind of discharge and you're able and willing to take a suitable job, you'd be eligible for the readjustment allowance, just as though you weren't getting a pension.

Question from ex-WAC C. S.: "I heard a veteran can draw the readjustment allowance for a maximum of 52 weeks. Do those weeks have to come in a row? I mean, do they have to be consecutive?

No. You can be unemployed, and draw the allowances. When you get a job, you stop getting the allowance. Then, if you lose the job, and are again unemployed, you can start right in drawing the $20 from Uncle Sam.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Maj. Nial will answer your individual questions about World War II veterans' rights without charge as quickly as he can get to them. Simply write to him, in care of The Constitution, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped reply envelope.

SAUSAGE AND SWEET POTATO LOAF

1 pound sausage meat
1 cup quick-cooling oatmeal
½ cup evaporated milk
2 cups mashed sweet potatoes
¼ cup evaporated milk
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup thinly sliced apples

Mix the sausage, oatmeal and the ½ cup evaporated milk thoroughly. Allow to stand about 20 minutes. Blend sweet potatoes, the ¼ cup evaporated milk, nutmeg, ginger and salt. Grease loaf pan and line with heavy waxed paper. Brush with shortening. Sprinkle the brown sugar and cinnamon on bottom of the pan. Cover with apple slices which have not been peeled. Cover with mashed potato mixture and top with sausage mixture. Press down lightly but firmly. Bake in hot oven (400 F.) 40 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes after removing from oven. Loosen edges and turn out onto a hot platter. Yield: 6 servings.

BAKED CRABMEAT IN SHELLS

1½ cups shredded crabmeat
3 hard cooked eggs
¼ cup cracker crumbs
2 eggs, well beaten
1-3 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
3 tablespoons sherry

Press the hard cooked eggs through a sieve. Add the crabmeat, cracker crumbs, beaten eggs, milk and butter. Stir in the seasonings and sherry and mix thoroughly. Spoon the mixture into four or six crab or "coquille" shells, top with buttered crumbs mixed with a little grated cheese. Bake in a hot oven, (425 F.) for 15 minutes, or until golden brown. Garnish with parsley.

BEETS WITH HORSERADISH SAUCE

1 bunch beets (4 or 5)
1 tablespoon vinegar
2 cups water
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup liquid drained from beets
1 cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish

Pare raw beets thinly. Shred coarsely. (There should be 2 cups.) Boil beets, vinegar, water and salt until beets are tender. Drain and save liquid for sauce. There should be 1 cup; if not, add water. Melt butter and blend in flour. When smooth and bubbling, stir in liquid from beets and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add horseradish and combine with beets. Serve hot. Yield: 6 servings.

To give employment and to get employment . . .a Want Ad in The Constitution is equally effective in both cases.

LOUELLA PARSONS REPORTS:

McCarey's 'Adam and Eve' Teams Bergman, Stewart

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—(INS)—"Adam and Eve," starring Ingrid Bergman and Jimmie Stewart, is Leo McCarey's next idea to follow his highly successful "Going My Way" and "Bells of St. Mary's." Ingrid plays Eve and Jimmie the role of Adam in the story of the first man and first woman in the Garden of Eden. Leo is writing the story with St. Clair McKelway.

Am told the screen story will be done with the same dignity that characterized "Going My Way" and "Bells," Leo told me in an interview he never wanted to make a cheap or sensational story.

Jimmie Stewart

The very delectable role of Dolly Madison in "The Magnificent Doll" goes to Ginger Rogers. What a chance for the Rogers girl to wear gorgeous period clothes and to have really a gracious, marvelous role, for Dolly, remember, was the first of the Presidents' wives who brought glamor and charm into the White House where she ruled as a popular hostess. This will be her first costume picture.

Although Lupe Velez died Dec. 14, 1944, and I can hardly believe she's been gone a year, her estate is still tied up. Some settlement may be reached Feb. 4, when her sister, Josephine Velez Anderson, will have a hearing on her suit contesting Lupe's will. Lupe willed one-third of the estate to her mother, one-third to her brother's children and one-third to Lupe's secretary, Mrs. Kinder. Mrs. Anderson is trying to break the will to get a share of the estate.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The most surprised person in Hollywood to hear that Ann Post is marrying Edmund Lowe, was Eddie himself. I talked with him by telephone to Washington. He said: "How could such a story be circulated? Still hear from Thelma (Lady Furness) regularly, and I take lots of girls out. I have taken Mrs. Post to parties and think she is very charming and lovely, but I have no intention of getting married." Eddie returns here Feb. 22 to make a Monogram picture.

Here's a free suggestion to MGM: I have just finished reading Daphne Du Maurier's new book, "The King's General," and think it would be a wonderful vehicle for Susan Peters. The heroine, paralyzed at 18 as the result of an accident, spends her life in a wheelchair. But don't think she doesn't have exciting adventures and romance. There's a real love story running through the book, and it should make a wonderful picture.

Richard Greene and his wife, whom Hollywood has never met, land in this country Thursday. Dick went home to London at the beginning of the war and has been away nearly four years. He and Mrs. Greene will enjoy a brief holiday in New York and then proceed to 20th Century-Fox studio where he is still under contract. He'll play the lead opposite Peggy Cummins in "Forever Amber," although it is possible he may make another movie first.

DeKalb Women Voters' Board To Be Feted

The executive board of the DeKalb County League of Women Voters, Inc., will be entertained by Mrs. A. L. Wade, secretary, today at 10:30 o'clock at her home, 924 Church street, Decatur. Mrs. Wellington Stevenson, president, requests members to be present to consider plans for activities during the 25th year of the League; the important legislative program; qualifications of candidates for the Fifth District Congressional post to be filled by election on Feb. 12; and the League's get-out-the-vote activities before every election.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

WHAT TO EXPECT TODAY.
Sun in Aquarius.

General Tendencies—At this time the stronger influence for companionship and the fine arts should become quite evident, with excellent results if short trips are concerned, too—as if you made a little journey to go to a party or to see something unusual. It does not look to me as if money was the easiest thing to come by just now, but toward the end of next week, there ought to be quite a bit of it on hand. Stock market speculations seem important from now until the middle of February.

If Today Is Your Birthday.

Luck is with you this year, particularly in your dealings with the opposite sex or in unexpected circumstances. It is quite unlikely that changes will come about before the middle of the Summer. After the warm weather is over, try to be careful about such things, because you are quite apt to find yourself with unforeseen responsibilities upon your shoulders. Note this during September; you will have a taste of it in the first two weeks of July also. Make all plans carefully at that time.

Today's Watchword—Thinking about fine clothes and whether they bear a relation to fine manners, mull over this: "We all originally came from the woods. It is hard to eradicate from any of us the old taste for the tattoo and the warpaint, and the moment that money gets into our pockets, it somehow or another breaks out into adornment for our persons, without always giving refinement to our manners." Who said it? Sometimes when I become neat and orderly I will make a note of all my authors.

ADVANCED HEALTH RATING GOES TO SCHAFFNER CHICKS
SCHAFFNER Controlled Quality Chicks now officially grade U. S. PULLORUM PASSED. This advanced health rating means that the 38,000 breeders in our flocks have been blood-tested again and again until not even one pullorum carrier was found. Pullorum tolerance is ZERO. This makes Schaffner Chicks easy to raise. Our Foundation Breeding Farm stock is checked at Official Laying Tests. Commercial broiler orders also solicited. THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME — By Hatlo

Thousands Honor Memory of Lenin

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Twenty-four thousand persons viewed the embalmed body of Nikolai Lenin, founder of the Soviet state, in Red Square Monday on the 22d anniversary of his death, an official statement said.

Generalissimo Stalin and other Soviet leaders participated in a mourning meeting at the Kremlin.

Published photographs of the Kremlin ceremony pictured Stalin for the first time since his return from his Black sea vacation Dec. 17 and showed him looking alert and physically fit.
